Paris Women Still Favor Unrestrained Growth of Shingles

PARIS, Jan. 25 (AP)—There are no signs of weakening on the part of French women who are letting their hair grow.

Inch by inch the shingles are growing out and one by one those in the advance guard are appearing with coiffures which indicate that long hair is their goal. Many others already have attained it.

Another six months will see women's crowning glory reinstated, according to many hairdressers. In anticipation of the change milliners already are designing hats with draped crowns which conceal the bulging outline of flat braids, small chignons and retaining combs meant to hold ringlets in place.

Many evening hair ornaments are to be seen in jewelry shops patronized by the fashionable. There are several varieties of small combs with ornamental tops.

One variety has small diamond balls which are meant to be worn like jeweled polka dots scattered throughout the ringlets of the well-dressed head. Jeweled circular combs and jeweled bandeaux with small combs at the ends to hold them in place are being worn with evening costumes. A few women favor more elaborate head-dresses as ambitious as the former tiaras that were so nearly retired forever from service.

Jeweled stars on shell hairpins or small combs are one of the most favored forms of hair ornament.

The ex-llie establishment was humming with activity today in preparation for the birthday celebration of Sunday. The former king, however, left the servants to wrestle with various problems and pursued his regular routine, including sawing wood during the morning.

Princess Hermine was forced to abandon her customary daily walk into the village, apparently because the coming celebration attracted too many photographers to Doorn.

A CREED
"If you work in a town, in Heaven's name work for it. If you live in a town, live for it. Give for it. Help advance your neighborhood. Respect the laws that protect you. If you are a part of a locality, do not believe it. If you do, you are loosening the tendrils that hold you to the community, and with the first high wind that comes along you will be uprooted and blown away, and probably you will never know why."—Charles G. Dawes, vice president of the United States.

"Dollar Down"

AMERICAN civilization, progress, and advancement is due, says a British business man, to the amazing distribution of material things. He thinks the installment plan of buying is reorganizing our economic structure. And because Great Britain is too conservative to adopt the plan, it is struggling under the burden of traditions which have become obsessions.

Although British production has almost reached perfection, the distribution problem is so great as to cause depression, he declared before the American chamber of commerce.

Every American is optimistic for a banner year, whereas in Great Britain there is always talk of the burden left by the war. He believes that not only the distribution of material wealth by the dollar-down system helped business, but it has also aided in the development of citizenship.

For he says, "should difficult times overtake America, it will be able to face them, not only with increased material wealth and solid reserves, but what is more important, with a treasure house of human qualities, improved productive capacities, and a sense of citizenship which neither moth nor rust can corrupt, and which should enable it to withstand any temporary setback."

The Waning of Comedy
(From The Baltimore Sun)

Neither America as a whole nor Oklahoma as a part of it has ever done much for the comedy of manners. But in rough and tumble burlesque we have made a not inconsiderable contribution. Oklahoma, for example, has done as much with the materials at hand—consisting of a governor, a population and a couple of points of view—as might reasonably be expected of her. Indeed, she has done so much that we were led to look for even more. A denouement, it is true, is not so important to a comedy as to drama. But it is appreciated just the same. A joke ought not let us down just as the point is reached. Yet that is what Oklahoma has done.

Up to the closing minutes—unless we have mistaken an intermission for a final curtain—the fight for and against Gov. Henry Johnston had been lively and amusing. It was a fine potpourri of wild imaginings, wild charges and wild actions. Everybody, from the ghosts of the Rosierucians to the state supreme court and the national guard, was included in the dramatis personae at one time or another. The governor himself appeared in a series of brilliant impersonations, playing among others, the parts of Cromwell dispersing the Parliament and of the Shepherd of the Hills with a flock of olive lamb. Meanwhile, the legislature did what it could with off-stage noises. All in all, it was a good show—a trifle confused perhaps, a shade rowdy, maybe a bit silly if one is going to be Olympian about political affairs, but tremendously amusing considering that Oklahoma is still a young state.

But now, at the very last, everyone seems to have forgot his lines and to have stepped out of character. The governor is suspended smoothly and with dispatch. And "he received the news quietly," without a hint of resort to arms or aspersions. Lieutenant Governor Holloway, instead of seizing upon his new duties with the avidity of an understudy taking a main part, politely extends to the governor the privilege of using the executive offices, etc. Out in Oklahoma they may suddenly have come to feel that sort of thing is nice, but certainly they can't claim it is funny by the standards they have taught us to hold up. This is too bad of a sovereign state. What is happening out there? Have the people overnight lost their sense of humor? Or just possibly started in to regain it?

Got Brakes? Save Them!
THE ice that has now withstood the assault of many days of sunshine is by far the greatest hazard to the motorist of all the ills that may confront him.

Good brakes can never be recommended too highly to those who drive cars in this city; nor can caution be too greatly stressed to those who climb and coast the many hills in Iowa City.

At this time of the year, when the streets are solid sheets of ice, the only advice to the motorist that is now applicable, however, is: "Don't use your brakes if they are good; don't use them if they are bad; let the motor be your braking power!"

A sudden application of the brakes—regardless of chains—means that your car will start a sideling sliding that may mean a serious accident, or death.

Most drivers realize the braking power that a compressed motor offers; but they prefer to place their implicit trust in their reliable brakes. A few others may not know that an automobile engine, geared from "high" to "second" or "low," will slow down the heaviest car to a safe pace, even though it be descending the steepest hills.

The moral: play safe and shift before you reach the grades. If you have good brakes, that's fine; but save them until wet or dry weather.

Examinations Tougher?
EVERY year, a wail floats over the campus that reaches the most isolated groups of students, "examinations are surely getting tougher every year."

But are they? It seems quite true that those who bewail the difficulty of examinations are those who have put off until the last week an entire semester's studying.

The school work is not parcelled out in such light daily quantities that one is able to absorb the work of an entire semester in a week of "craming." That is not the principle upon which true education is built.

The student who has conscientiously worked on his courses from week to week, is conspicuous during examination week by his nonchalant air of unconcern.

Have you ever seen a four-point student deriding the faculty and the whole organization for the imposition of comprehensive examinations that embody principles which have been concentrated upon during all the preceding weeks?

It isn't all luck or breaks that bring marks of distinction in school. As a matter of fact, it isn't examinations that decide the grades in many courses. They all bear on the final result, but are incidental rather than final.

No! Examinations aren't getting tougher; the trouble is that the same students who yell are getting more careless.

Lend a Hand
NEW students who will take up work here the second semester have already begun their trek into Iowa City.

To those who are entering college for the first time everything will be strange and almost intangible.

When you have gone to a strange city, you will remember how grateful you were to the person who took enough interest in you and your difficulties to set you right.

Let's take it as a personal duty to help out one who is in trouble. They will appreciate it more than the casual thanks that they mutter in return for your efforts indicate.

Not only can this courtesy be extended to those who are registering, but to the folks who yet know nothing concerning the layout of the streets and avenues in Iowa City.

If you see someone trying to read an upside-down signboard, or trying to figure out the hieroglyphics painted upon the curbstones, step up and offer your aid.

The students who have received some little courtesy during their tiresome pre-arranged week will be starved doftwhiffies, correct impression of the spirit that predominates on the campus.

It is well to remember that all daily good deeds are not limited or reserved to the Boy Scouts.

Chills and Fever

Chills and Fever presents for Honorable Mention today: Danie Burks, Kappa Kappa Gamma and A4 of somewhere in Montana. Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board, and still has time to get about. A Dramatic and considerable ability, and power in the University players. Scholastics alone would not place him in this column, nor activities alone, but when they are combined with the personality that makes people forget that she is capable of ethical life is worthy of honorable mention.

Dear C. Fever.
I have been going out with a girl for 40 years or more now, and I have only one complaint to make. She never says anything. It would be wonderful what I have to carry the burden of the conversation.

My dear B. J. Ferrel
Have you ever given her a chance to say anything? Fever

A Tri Delt's Soliloquy
To neck or not to neck; that is the question:
Whether 'tis better for the reputation to submit
To the advances of outrageous students
Or to take arms against all the males
And by opposing, end dates. To sit alone:
What boredom comes, when no one calls must give us pause
For we would will bear the monotony of no dates,
No telephone calls. The girls' laughs, the boys' pity,
When we catch the popularity make with a little necking.

Dear C. Fever:
The girl, Dick Brown says, after wading through a heavy exam, "I'm glad to get this over so big this way."

Another Campaign
A new campaign on the campus approached us the other day and said, with an anxious look on his face, "I say, my good man, has the Rock Island railroad got me wrong? I bought a ticket to Iowa City, the town where the University of the Great State of Iowa abounds, and here I find myself in Peoria, with a convention of the Benevolent, Amalgamated, Protective and Synthetic Order of Hipopotamuses sitting on me. Everybody I see is stretching out his hand, slapping a back and saying with fraternal jovialness, 'Hello, how do you do, my friend?'"

Dean Rlenow has been "hidden" in columns and Privots and everywhere else, and he probably would like to shoot communists. Anyway we can't resist this one. The story goes that he called a rather prominent person in the city and said, "Hello, this is Dean Rlenow speaking. The listener, not to be outdone, replied, 'Hello, how do you do, Mr. Dean?'"

Commissioner of Education

Stresses Value of Teaching

WASHINGTON (AP)—A man who believes that school administrative machinery always should be kept subordinate to the teaching process is the new head of the vast public education machinery of the United States.

He is William John Cooper, state superintendent of public instruction of the University of Florida. Mr. Cooper, now 46 years old, was declared to be one of the ablest among the younger educators of the United States by Governor Young of California, when the latter appointed him state superintendent two years ago.

There is one primary reason for the existence of the school," Mr. Cooper says. "That is, to provide stimuli for and afford direction to the development of children. The chief concern of the teacher is children. The chief concern of the administrator is to have teaching take place under the most favorable conditions."

Leon Penquite, '24 of Colfax, has been named second deputy commissioner of insurance.

Clinton (AP)—Total cost of construction and maintenance of the county road system in Clinton county during 1928 was $99,924.86.

Max E. Conn, '22 of Davenport, has joined the law firm of Lane and Waterman of Davenport. Mr. Conn was president of the Scott County Bar association during 1926-27.

A world catastrophe, the subsidence of the land in England submerged by sea with the exception of isolated highlands. Martin and his wife were deluged. Both, however, escaped in reaching safe land, each was convinced that had perished. Martin lived, but his wife's body was never recovered.

That evening, on a trip by boat, the two men were startled by the appearance of a short, fat man—evidently a jockey. When the camp had been some time, they made their way to the tunnel. They realized they would no longer be seen, and planned to set fire to the tunnel to attract their attention. They escaped on the way of the other end. The leading train, confident the plan would succeed, followed Joe to the tunnel.

But they failed to reckon on the jockey. He had followed Joe to the tunnel, and he had a gun. He wanted Claire, but not to risk his own life. He wanted Claire, but not to risk his own life.

DELUGE

By S. Fowler Wright

What has gone before.

A world catastrophe, involving the submergence of the land in Europe, left England submerged beneath the sea with the exception of a few isolated highlands. Martin Templeton and his wife were separated by the deluge. Both, however, succeeded in reaching safe land, although each was convinced that the other had perished. Martin lived a solitary existence on an island which he had not explored thoroughly.

Claire Arlington's ability as a swimmer saved her from the flood. For several weeks she lived on a small island with two men. Finding their company intolerable, she swam to another island, where she lived for some time with an old shepherd and his daughter. Still dissatisfied, and desiring a congenial mate, she again cast herself on the mercy of the waters. She swam to the island where Martin lived. Martin offered her the hospitality of his hut in the recesses of a deserted railroad tunnel.

That evening, on a trip to a nearby stream to get fresh water, they were startled by the appearance of a short, fat man—evidently a former jockey. He apparently did not see them but they decided to remain hidden until dusk. Suddenly, Martin heard a movement behind them, and looked up just in time to see a huge, brutalized, bearded man with a heavy sledge hammer raised to strike him. Quick thought enabled Martin to dodge the blow. Claire, however, was unable to escape, and she was grasped by the hair. Hurling the sledge at Martin, the giant seized Claire, stripped her clothes from her, and then, despite her struggles, tucked her under his arm and carried her away.

He took her to a campfire around which a score of men and women were gathered. An old man bound her hands and feet and laid her near the edge of the camp. While the crowd was eating and drinking, Martin cut Claire's bonds and they escaped in the darkness. In the struggle and confusion of the escape, she was killed. Claire and Martin hid in a cleft of underbrush while the men vainly searched the surrounding country. As Claire and Martin lay in the seclusion of the underbrush, the mutual attraction which had drawn them together revealed itself as love, and they pledged themselves to each other forever.

When the camp had been still for some time, they made their way back to the tunnel, where they realized they would no longer be safe there, and planned to set fire to one end of the tunnel to attract their pursuers while they escaped on the trolley by way of the other end. They began loading the trolley, confident that their plan would succeed.

But they failed to reckon with Joe Harker, the ex-jockey. Joe had seen them by the stream the day before, although he had given no sign of wanting Claire, but he was not given to risking his own safety. Consequently, he enlisted the aid of the gang, Smith and Donovan, promising to share the woman with them. These two both had guns, missing Claire's knee by an inch, as the wounded woman pulled her down with the rifle which she would not lose. But this time he made no mistake. He felt the slim blade sink into the belly of the struggling form, and drove it in—inwards and upwards. Claire was conscious that the rifle was in her own hands only. She rose to her feet, breathing with difficulty.

"Thank God, that's over," said Martin. But was it? With a common impulse they looked toward the mouth of the tunnel, in fear of further antagonists. They saw Joe Harker, who stood there for a moment, now that the shots had ceased, and vanished quickly as he saw that they had observed him.

Martin attempted to pick up the rifle and to search the dead man for any

Need for Winter Wheat Cover, Cold Push Grain Prices

CHICAGO, Jan. 25 (AP)—Widespread extreme cold and simultaneous acute need of snow covering for domestic winter wheat pushed grain prices upward strongly today despite selling to realize profits. Trade in the grain pit was broader, and corn and oats went above the season's previous tiptop quotations.

Wheat values closed firm at 12 to 12 net advance. Corn finished strong 11 to 11c up, oats showing 1/2c to 1c gain, and previous varying from 2c decline to a rise of 12c. From the outset, the wheat market gave evidence of increased buying, based largely on reports of unfavorable crop conditions that stretched from the Rockies to the Alleghenies, misgivings about likelihood of damage to winter wheat by proposed notable absence of snow protection throughout big areas, especially west of the Mississippi river and in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Friends of higher prices made much meanwhile of assertions of unavailability of crop conditions that stretched from the Rockies to the Alleghenies, misgivings about likelihood of damage to winter wheat by proposed notable absence of snow protection throughout big areas, especially west of the Mississippi river and in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Skienmen Beat Spirit Lake, 35-22; Clinton Whips Hawklets Iowa

Visitors' Defense Fails in Attempt to Halt Blackmer

Lanky Center Leads Scoring With 18 Points

Combining a close guarding defense with consistent scoring drive built around the lanky Blackmer, the University high cagers swept to a 35-22 victory over Spirit Lake in a fairly fast and exciting game last night. Failure to watch Blackmer cost the Spirit Lake Indians an opportunity to gain another win as the tall U. high center dropped in eight field goals while unopposed in the basket.

Only in the first few minutes of the tilt did the visitors threaten to defeat the Skienmen when Chalstrom, pivot man, sank five points in rapid succession. Thursday afternoon, Blackmer began his consistent gathering of potshots and the home team clung tenaciously to a goal that they held until the end of the game.

After the Skienmen took ahead, the Spirit Lakers' offense began to show up. Evidently the hard fought victory over Spirit Lake Thursday took its toll for the visitors showed a lack of drive in their usual flashy offense.

Chalstrom Starts Scoring

Chalstrom, playing center for Spirit Lake, started the scoring by making good a charity toss and following up with two long shots from the side of the court. At this point the game began to speed up, both teams pounding up and down the floor. The advance of Chalstrom into the game for Schmidt seemed to put into the Skienmen for Blackmer and Starbuck collaborated in making the score 6 to 5 at the end of the quarter.

U. high's passing attack took an erratic but effective course. Blackmer popped another of his "sneer" shots to begin the scoring. Johnson increased the score when he sank two long shots after being fouled as he made a tip-in shot. The Blackmer-Starbuck combination fluctuated again to raise the count to 12 to 11 at the half.

Blackmer Runs Wild

Gibner replaced Blackmer for Spirit Lake at the beginning of the second half and immediately started a long hooper from a difficult angle. Johnson's third foul of the game gave Spirit Lake another point. U. high's passing attack was one in from a mixup under the meshes. This same player then bucketed two more goals in rapid succession before the half.

Blackmer missed an easy set-up while standing alone by the basket just after the start of the final period but his teammate Johnson, cracked off a neat hook shot and a charity loss to increase the totals for U. high. Webb's sensational loss from mid-floor for Spirit Lake only served to incite Blackmer to resume his scoring spree for the tall pivot man patted in another pot shot, bringing the score up to 22-15.

For a few minutes ensuing, both teams battled on even terms until Johnson committed his fourth personal of the evening and was removed from the game. Kriz, substitute U. high forward, then preceded Blackmer in scoring by slipping in a side shot which was duplicated by the center.

Reserves Go In

After Chalstrom sickened in a flood of reserve material, the Spirit Lake quintet suddenly broke loose from apparent lethargy to bucket three goals in less than a minute. Blackmer, however, soon stopped this spree, by counting another sleeper before the final gun. The game ended 35 to 22 in favor of University high.

Aside from his scoring 18 points, Blackmer played a stellar game at the pivot position constantly out-jumping his opponent and maintaining an even pace in the passing attack. Johnson and Starbuck were other stars for the visitors while Gibner, Chalstrom and Robinson scintillated for Spirit Lake.

Local Postmaster Urges Secondary Road Improvement

Postmaster C. C. Shradler yesterday sent letters to Senator D. Whitney Johnson, county representative, and George F. Clearman, state senator from this district, urging the support of conditions which will help secondary road conditions.

Several bills have been introduced before the state legislature this term. One providing that township roads shall come under the control of county supervisors. It has the backing of the state rural mail carriers' association and has 22 members in Johnson county.

Another bill proposed an additional one cent gas tax, proceeds from which are to be applied to secondary roads. Any provision will be split factory to Mr. Shradler which rural mail carriers approve. They are interested in the improvement of township routes, over which they travel.

It is hard to say which provisions will go into the bill in its final form. Local opinion among postal workers favors a preferential treatment of township roads.

Sailor Gives Akronite Boxing Lesson in Victory

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP)—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, smashed out a bruising decision over K.O. Christner, rugged Akron veteran, in a stirring 10-round battle here tonight.

With his Miami Beach engagement with Young Stribling at stake, Sharkey fought in stunning fashion to bruise the burly rubber worker who sprang into prominence through his recent knockout of Knute Hansson in a crowd of almost 20,000 at the sing-fest. Although there were no knock-downs, one or the other reeled in almost every round in the swinging fray. The crowd, all in sympathy with Christner's game stand, booed the decision lustily.

A capacity house of close to 20,000 with the "gate" above $90,000 greeted the heavyweights. Sharkey was a 2 to 1 favorite over the 34 year old midwesterner, who jumped into the ring with a crowd of almost 20,000.

Round One

Sharkey came out cautiously and met Christner's Alibi rush with left hook to the jaw. They wrestled into the midwesterner's corner and ripped wild torrents of gloves to each other's heads and bodies. The crowd roared as Christner slammed the Boston heavyweight across the ring and forced him to the defensive.

Round Two

Round Three

Sharkey boxed indolently as he easily parried Christner's leads. K. O. ripped a heavy left into Christner's chin that brought Jack back to work again. Taking advantage of every false move, Sharkey punched left hook and countered with a right hand smash to the chin.

Round Four

Sharkey tore into the slightly hunched Christner with a heavy left smash to the body. He threw aside caution and slugged with Christner in a wild melee on the ropes. As Christner's head came away from a full right swing on Sharkey's temple but Jack booted him a counter to the body. The crowd roared as Sharkey landed a right hand smash to the chin.

Round Five

Christner fell into a clinch and clucked Sharkey's head with short rights. He nailed Jack coming away with another right to the chin. Enraged by the right hand punches that rattled off his jaw, Sharkey stepped into Christner with both hands and slugged back with both hands until Sharkey held, blinking under punishment. Sharkey's judgment of distance was poor and he missed frequently as Christner bullied him into a corner and smashed the Bostonian lustily with both hands.

Round Six

Round Seven

Fighting a careful counter battle, Sharkey met Christner's lead and then ripped both hands to the body. Christner lay back so Sharkey drove in with a booming left hook to the ribs. Christner's head came away from a right hand smash to the head. Christner landed that jarring right again at the bell.

Round Eight

Tired from the fierce pace and missing frequently, both were content to clinch and punch with one free hand. As they milled around the ring Sharkey dug his left into Christner's body and bruised K. O.'s chin with short rights. One left started a stream of blood from Christner's nose, first apparent damage of the slug fest. Standing clear they traded full right and left shots to the chin but neither wavered. Christner was very tired at the bell.

Round Nine

Sharkey, with a goodly margin ahead, played safe clinching frequently while at Christner's body. K.O. pinned Jack against the ropes and clubbed at his sides. When Christner's iron sides failed under Sharkey's pounding, Jack ripped a right to the chin, but Sharkey's right hand smash to the body, He threw aside caution and slugged with Christner in a wild melee on the ropes. As Christner's head came away from a full right swing on Sharkey's temple but Jack booted him a counter to the body. The crowd roared as Sharkey landed a right hand smash to the chin.

Round Ten

Stribling K.O.'s Smith in Opening Round

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 25 (AP)—Young Stribling won his fight here tonight with Ralph Smith of California on a technical knockout in the third round when the referee stopped the bout. Stribling weighed 184, Smith 222.

The fight was such a debacle for the big western giant who towered a head above the Georgia contender for the championship vacated by Gene Tunney that the referee interfered to award the technical decision to Stribling.

Smith Knocked Down Three Times

Smith was knocked down three times in the first round, once in the second, and twice in the third before the fight was stopped.

Muscatine Five Eliminate Mac's Quintet in Meet

Locals Lose Contest 24-23 in Final Minute

MUSCATINE, Jan. 25 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—A field goal by P. H. Malone, Iowa City forward, sunk a start just after the final whistle which would have changed matters had it come a second sooner.

The Muscatine Boosters were leading the game by a three point margin with two and a half minutes to go when the Sports Shop five scored a brace of field goals to jump into the lead with a lone minute to play. Then McIntyre's spectacular shot proved to be the undoing of the Iowa City aggregation.

For Mac's five, Malone, at forward was the brightest light of the evening, accounting for three baskets and the same number of free throws. Hraz, who scored four field goals and McIntyre, with three baskets and a like number of charity tosses, were the leading scorers for the Muscatine aggregation.

Tonight Mac's Sports Shop will meet Burlington in a championship contest to determine third place in the meet. The championship game will be between Muscatine and the Rock Island Y.M.C.A.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP)—Ray Barbuti, Olympic hero and Edwin Moses, Sweden's foot racing school master, will make their first appearance of the indoor season at the annual track and field games of the second Madison district of Manhattan tomorrow night.

Definite sanction for Wide to run in a special 1,500 meter event was received today from the president of the A.A.U. in Chicago. Barbuti is to stride the 400 meter distance at which he won the championship at Amsterdam last summer. Since Barbuti has been doing little training his bit will be a solo run.

BOSTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Al Mello, Lowell welterweight, outpunched Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, here tonight in a furious non-title 10-round battle. Dundee came in inside the welterweight limit, but Mello was overweight.

Mello led in five rounds, Dundee led in four and the fight was even. The Lowell boy had two knockdowns on his credit, one in the first and the other in the eighth.

This and That in Sports

Current Comment By Guss

Tonight the Hawkley hoopers cried the completion of examinations by taking on the highly touted Creighton five. The game will be one of the best on the local court this season. If advance predictions are anywhere near correct, in former seasons the Bluejay quintet has furnished formidable opposition for the Hawks, and on one memorable occasion, they gave the Barronsmen a severe drubbing. What will transpire tonight is problematical, as Sam's proteges have undoubtedly been off form in all of their recent workouts. It is highly probable that the Hawk coach will not even use his regular combination, which has done little regular practicing this last week.

He plans, instead, to start five of his sophomore cagers and give them a little experience against stiff opposition. These boys, many of whom have entered the "big" games as substitutes, are a real bunch of go-getters, and when they take the floor, they make up for it by the spirit which they put into their play. While they are lacking so far in conference experience, several of them have played at other schools. Peck Genova was a star at Parsons college, Leeka had some experience in the south, and Hal Jebens was a star during the season he played with the Drake Bulldogs.

So far as conference competition is concerned, most of the Big Ten teams are taking a lay-off this week, only one contest being on the books for tonight. That is the Ohio State-Chicago game to take place at Columbus as a matinee affair. Practically all of the conference fives are doing the same as the Hawkley, keeping tuned up for the coming battles by taking on non-conference opposition.

Speaking of Big Ten basketball, Stretch Murphy, elongated pivot man of the Purdue Boilermakers, has a chance to break the existing conference scoring record set by Johnny Miller of Ohio State in 1925. Unofficial averages a week ago showed that the long boy has averaged a shade better than 15 per game. However, he did not do so well in the fixtures against the Badgers the other night, accounting for but four tallies. Miner's record of 133 still leaves stretch something like 70 markers behind, but he has enough games to go to overcome this margin if he keeps looping them in at his present rate. The question in the minds of the sports fans right now is whether he can recover his scoring stride after having been stopped once. Several prospective scoring records in the last few years have failed after making almost as steady a start as has Murphy.

Jack Sharkey, the Boston Gob, proved that he is one of the outstanding contenders for the title left vacant by Gene Tunney when he slashed his way to a thrilling 10-round victory over K. O. Christner, the iron man from Akron, O. It was never a case of too much science and heavy boxing for the old warhorse who rose out of a rubber pit to become one of the outstanding fighters of the year. By all rights Sharkey ought to have put the big boy to sleep, but he simply didn't have enough strength to do it—and that isn't saying that Jack doesn't pack a mean wallop. However, it simply means that the big shock absorber was too strong for Sharkey. Meanwhile Stribling was winning his preliminary bout before the big battle against Sharkey in Miami next month.

CLINTON, Jan. 25 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—Clinton high school again tonight proved the masters of the Little Hawks of Iowa City high in one of the fastest games played on the local court all season. When the final gun had sounded Clinton had a margin of 26 to 16, and it took all too small for safety throughout most of the contest.

Both teams played excellent defensive games, and most of the scoring was done on long shots from near mid court. Things opened up by the end of the initial half the home team had forged ahead 15 to 11. The Hawklet defense was airtight until the end of the second quarter when the long range shots of the locals began to have a telling effect.

Glick, forward, was the big star for Iowa City so far as the scoring end of the game was concerned. He garnered in three field goals and a charity loss for a total of seven points, nearly half of his team's score. Both Iowa City guards played a fine defensive game.

Hansen, Clinton guard, was the star of the entire contest scoring four baskets and playing a whala of a game on the floor.

Police Judge's Office Attracts No Candidate

Council's Reduction of Salary From $1,000 to $1 Discourages Applicants for Position; Other Papers Filed

Iowa City is evidently due to be without a police court during the next two years. When time for filing nomination papers for candidates in the city election closed at 5 p.m. yesterday, no one had filed for the office of police judge.

The council recently reduced the salary of the police judge from $1,000 a year to $1 a year and this is given as the reason for the sudden unpopularity of the office.

Papers for all other elective city offices have been filed, but there is only one candidate filed for each office in the two parties.

William J. White, running for re-election as city assessor, is the only unopposed party candidate. He is a democrat and the republicans have not presented a candidate.

Carol Weber File
Mayor J. J. Carroll has filed papers seeking re-election on the democratic ticket, while William Weber, former councilman, is seeking support of the republicans for the same office.

For councilman-at-large, which office requires that two persons be named in the city election, there are four candidates running, two in each party.

C. Paine and W. F. McRoberts, incumbents, are both seeking re-election on the republican ticket, while the democrats have as candidates Dr. W. L. Bywater and Louis J. Messner.

Raymond, Messner for Treasurer
C. Raymond will be the only one running on the republican ticket. The democrats have chosen Louis J. Messner for their candidate for city treasurer.

One vacancy on the park commission board, because of the expired term of Mrs. William Wagner, is being sought by Alfred N. Scales on the democratic ticket and George S. Carson on the republican.

This completes the ticket for both parties, the ward councilmen being selected at the primary without filing of petitions.

Parties Name Candidates
With each party machine working smoothly enough to present only one man for each office, the primary promises to be little more than a mere formality. Leaders of each party are now starting to work for support in readiness for the election March 25. The primary will be Feb. 25.

Exact disposition of the police court is not yet known, but the council hoped, by passing the ordinance making the salary of the judge $1 a year, to do away with the office and let the duties fall to the mayor.

Interest of no slight amount is promised as the election time nears. The last administration saw a democratic mayor with a council made up of five republicans and two democrats. Two of the five republicans, both councilmen-at-large, are seeking re-election, as is the democratic mayor.

Lonzo Jones Files $12,327 Judgment Against Local Men

Lonzo Jones, G. of Iowa City, yesterday filed suit against G. A. Brown and Roger Brown for judgment of $12,327.50 alleged damages for an accident occurring Nov. 1, when he was struck by a car driven by Roger Brown.

The accident took place on U. S. highway 32, west of the general hospital. Jones claims that the Chevrolet sedan, owned by G. A. Brown and driven by Roger Brown, struck him because of the latter's speeding and did not have proper control of the car.

As a result of the accident, Jones states that he received a fractured skull, a severe scalp tear, and several broken teeth. The injuries made it necessary for him to stay in bed two weeks, caused scars that will disfigure him for life, and resulted in permanent injuries to his health, he alleges.

Jones, who has been employed as assistant to Robert E. Riemow, dean of men, asserts that his earning capacity has been greatly impaired and that he is now subject to dizzy spells and weakness.

He asks judgment of $12,327.50 with interest at six per cent and costs of action. E. P. Korab will act as his attorney.

W. H. Rogers Dies at Hospital After Five Week Illness

Rogers was a member of the Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen and Redman lodges. He is survived by four sons: Norman and Les of Iowa City, Glenn of Cedar Rapids, and Lloyd of Eldora; two daughters: Mrs. William Gibson of West Branch and Mrs. P. White, Mrs. Fred Cole, Mrs. George Trundy, Mrs. P. H. Baxter, Mrs. Anna Barsley, Mrs. George Hildebrand, Mrs. Frank Kindl and Mrs. Isom Rankin.

Auxiliary Plans to Have Card Party

Sheriff Finds Cars With Old Licenses

Eleven Fords still bearing 1928 license plates have been discovered by Frank L. Smith. The cars will not be allowed to the office until Feb. 1, however, when the war against delinquent drivers will begin in earnest.
