What is BILL?

- Project hosted at the School of Celtic Studies, Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies (http://bill.celt.dias.ie/).

- Only dedicated bibliography for scholars and students of Irish language and literature in international Academia.

- Continuation of Irish bibliographies by R. I. Best (Vol. I 1913, Vol. II 1942) and R. Baumgarten (1986).

- Online coverage: 1972-present (1942-present with Baumgarten).

Bibliography coverage

- All linguistic disciplines applied to any period of the Irish language, including its hypothetical stages as well as its offshoots (Scottish Gaelic and Manx).

- Studies and editions of Irish language literature composed before the late 19th c. revival.

- Gaelic literature from Scotland to c. 1745.

- Gaelic literature from Isle of Man is also included.

Types of material surveyed

- Articles from academic journals and periodical publications.
- Book chapters/articles from multi-author publications such as congress proceedings, yearbooks or festschriften, whose contents are not found in library catalogues.
- Monographs.
- Reviews of books and periodical volumes.
- Unpublished manuscripts, theses, etc. are left out.

Current size (July 2015)

- 6,300+ periodical articles;
- 3,200+ book articles/sections/chapters;
- 455 periodical titles;
- 1,100+ monographs and multi-authored books;
- 3781 unique authors/contributors.

Bibliographical information offered

- Full bibliographical details for each item using a standard citation formula:

  [Author+Title+Parent publication, if present (series, journal, etc.)+Place of pubication+Date of publication+collation]

- Annotation: a description of contents where these are not evident from title.

- Subject classification and indexes for each entry.

Technology

- Open Source software components:
  - Online BILL uses MySQL as database engine.
  - Web-based interface written in PHP.
  - Servers run on Debian-based Linux Apache [LAMP (software bundle)]
  - Xapian
  - LaTeX typesetting system used for PDF rendering of bibliography material.

MySQL

Advantages:

- Relational database: BILL database is spread across several different but related tables which are connected by means of certain key fields.

- Allows to deal with hierarchical information, which can be organised as trees in a parent-child relationship.

Design problems (1)

- Current design of the Online BILL website originates in the period 2002-2004.

- Adapted from eBILL CD-ROM: characteristic frame structure, allowing limited navigation through lists of information, with no search possibilities.

- Improvement on eBILL: Online BILL incorporates hyperlink navigation.

Design problems (2)

- Accommodating four different bibliographical works in one single website has not been done in a successful way.

- Size of database makes current method of website navigation cumbersome and unwieldly.

- Lack of an online database search tool in the original plan is a serious drawback.

- Search tool implemented in 2014 is only a temporary remedy.
