NOTES: We have been very busy this past year acquiring many new fossils for this bulletin. I believe we added over 300 new echinoids alone. You will find a lot of new listings throughout this publication. Some beautiful new trilobites, many new crinoids, some of the best dinosaur teeth we've seen, an incredible collection of insects in tar, amazing new stromatolites and many, many more.

I wish we could photograph every fossil we list, but it's impossible. With that said, please contact us if you'd like to see a specific fossil photographed. We'll be happy to email you any photo you wish.

I hope you enjoy the new Bulletin. If you have a specific needs or wants, and don't see it listed here, then give us a call or write to us and we will do our very best to find it for you. We look forward to hearing from you throughout the coming year.

The following fossil insects are from Colombia, South America. Colombia produces the most fossiliferous amber in the world! Although, there is much debate about the age of this amber, we continue to believe it is Miocene in age. No one can date this fossil tree resin by any definitive tests. These tests are not available. There are people that will say the only true "amber" is from the Dominican Republic or from the Baltic Sea.
 Those people are usually financially invested.
 Geological Enterprises produces, markets and sells amber from all localities, including Dominican, Colombian, Baltic, Mexican and African. If we chose to call Colombian amber, copal, then we would call Dominican amber, copal as well.

The following fossils are from the Mt. Simon Formation of Wisconsin. They are thought to be Lower Upper Cambrian, 510 Million Years old. Fossils from this locality contain some of the best preserved jellyfish and trace fossils known on Earth. The Jellyfish are particularly outstanding as they are the largest jellyfish in the entire Fossil Record. One paper has been published on this incredible find. "STRANDED ON THE LATE CAMBRIAN SHORELINE: MEDUSA FROM CENTRAL WISCONSIN", G.S.A. February 2002.
