○ hail to thee, our Jefferson,
We raise this song to thee;
The mem'ries dear that linger here
Are bound with loyalty.

○ hail to thee, our Jefferson,
This joyful lay now hear,
Within thy walls, thy hallowed halls,
Our praises still ring clear.

○ hail to thee, dear Jefferson,
Our hearts, our thoughts are true;
This solemn vow is given now,
A pledge of love to you.

Though fate may draw us far away
And other duties call,
The friendships gained will be retained
To bind and hold us all.

WE HONOR

Miss Ethel M. Shea

We, the classes of January and June 1939, wish to dedicate this, our senior annual, to Miss Ethel M. Shea, our girls' adviser. Her foresight and wisdom have guided us through many problems in our school life. Her kindly advice and aid will be long remembered and appreciated by those who have known her.

OUR PRINCIPALS

Marguerite B. Shelmadine

Considerable praise is due the staff of the Jeffersonian for producing this record of individual and group achievements of the members of the graduating classes. May this book serve to keep alive those happy recollections of pleasant associations at Jefferson High School.

The real worth of your high school training will be demonstrated by your willingness to accept the responsibilities of good citizenship, and thereby bring credit to your Alma Mater. I earnestly hope that you will not consider your education completed with graduation from high school, but will continue to exercise an intellectual curiosity toward that vast fund of knowledge to which mankind is heir.

I wish to congratulate all of you on the successful completion of your high school work, and to assure you of my continued interest in your welfare. The faculty joins me in extending best wishes for success in whatever field you may enter.

CLASS PROPHECY—JANUARY 1939

I WILL have none of the occult, black magic, or other pseudo-metaphysical clap-trap, but . . .

While idling before an open fire (gas log) I slipped off to sleep. Seemingly quite soon, I awoke to a babel of hollow, sepulchral intonation. I glanced vacantly about me. My apathetic senses oppugned exertion. Languorously I slid back into my chair.

Then, with preternatural celerity, I returned from my sensory caprice and (mirabile dictu!) I found myself precariously stranded in a busy thoroughfare.

Motorized sea shells (futuristic automobilia) zoomed incessantly past. Fatalistically I edged my way to the security of the trottoirs. A news-urchin bared a tabloid announcing, "Dionnes to Wed in Mammoth Ceremony." Upon further perusal I found the date to be May 13, 1954!

I drifted—mouth agape—down the street. The idealist who spoke in the park square seemed familiar. I soon recognized him as a high school classmate.

"Why condone materialism?" rang his challenge. "Of what conceivable use are earthly goods? We are continually thinking of the conditions of our bodies, but what of our intellectual salubrity?"

I turned away musing on his faultless dress and pudgy face . . . intellectual salubrity! I knew him when "sanity" would have been sufficient . . .

The taxi driver sitting on the park bench also gives vent to his philosophy.

"Now dat guy's got da right slant. Why worry? Yessir, dat's da only philosapy. Intellechell freedom's da ting."

I had walked a block before I recognized the taxi driver also as being a former classmate. Our class! How aesthetic!

The man-mole leaned heavily upon his spade, as he has done since W.P.A. immemorial. He snapped, ravenously at his bologna sausage. "An education—" he seemed to be looking at me—"An education for this! Well, as Mr. Clapp said, 'Someone's got to do it!'" . . .

The "capitalist," looking at the workman, meditated enviously, "I went to school with him. Look at him relishing his lunch! Lunch! For me—two aspirins and a half-glass of water!"

The hawker at the gutter's edge was also among my erstwhile classmates. He was an athlete. A smooth patter flowed effortlessly through his thin, sardonic lips. "Ten cents" . . . He displayed a toy celluloid doll, gaudily feather-bedecked, who fluttered her eyes facetiously. "Only ten cents. An amusin' toy for the kiddies" . . . I moved away from the strapping six-footer. Imagine him, a former athlete, selling fluff dolls! I drifted on down the street . . .

"Yeah, I'm waiting to interview him—if he ever comes out. What a life! Thinking up bright things for the upper crust to say; putting life and "color" into obituaries; no home, no peace, indigestion. Wish I hadn't seen so many newspaper movies . . . Madcap heiresses, swanky cars, brotherly editors! What do movie scenarists know about newspapers!"

An unwilling listener—an old gentleman—perturbedly asked, "Why don't you get out of reporting?"

"I love it!" was the laconic riposte . . .

I stood off the scene amused. The news-hawk's lament was familiar. He had gone to English with me . . .

Righteousness was indelibly etched upon her uncompromising face. A huge tumbler of water enjoyed a too prominent berth at the right of her plate. She ate with the mechanical precision of an automaton. I wondered why she had been placed at the window of the restaurant—she definitely was not exhibitionistic. The prudish lines of her afternoon frock sounded a familiar ring; I smiled—she was a co-seeker of the elusive "x" in algebra class. Occupation? as temperance crusader, of course . . .

Noises mean little or nothing to me—I can hardly distinguish between a thunderclap and a tire blow-out. But immediately cognizant is the joyous clamor of children out of school.

The pattering of uncontrollable feet and ceaseless chatter could mean but one thing—a May walk. I was right. Turning the corner, a raucous band of moppets descended upon me. At the helm was another of the now famed class of '39. "Now, children," she admonished, "follow me and mind the traffic lights." She brushed past me, hurriedly begged my pardon and went on. She turned and looked back once or twice—I wondered if she recognized me . . .

I walked on—musing, smiling, sometimes laughing aloud, to my embarrassment as onlookers indignantly stared. I walked on and on—out of the fourth dimension.

I awoke—fatigued by my dream travels, smiling foolishly. I arose, dusted myself off, and left the library reciting a foolish doggerel—"Class of 1939! Rich man, poor man, beggarman, thief . . ."

THE FIRST school yearbook was published in June, 1935, by Jefferson's first senior high graduating class. In 1938 the name Jeffersonian was adopted.

The book is a project of the graduating classes, and work on its staff is voluntary.

The school yearbook has always been self-supporting, and is published by vote and through the efforts of the members of the graduating classes.

CLASS PROPHECY – JUNE 1939

THIS class is one of the largest ever to leave Jefferson and may it be the greatest in success as well as in number. Our group may do things that no crystal gazer could ever imagine and may leave a heritage so rich that it will color the pages of history. From our class may come future great names that will make the headlines in all fields.

One of our scientifically minded students may blossom out with a modernistic rocket ship that will make Mars, the moon, and the other planets so accessible that they will become vacation resorts for our descendants. Even Flash Gordon would have to bow to such an invention! Science offers another promising field in the possibilities of atom smashers that will reveal illimitable power in all objects. That elusive cancer cure might be discovered by one of our classmates. This would make the person an angel of mercy and throw rays of reflected glory on Jefferson. In our midst we may have harbored a genius who will become the tenth to understand Einstein's law of relativity. Perhaps by the time anyone from our class could read through the explanations there might be several others added to the present nine who claim to understand this law. Even such a small item as the invention of runless stockings would cause women to rain blessings on the inventor, who would become a benefactor of womankind.

The proverbial dream of all mothers that her son become the president might be answered for the parents of one from our midst. Perhaps a girl student may win the double honor of being the first woman to become president. In the literary field someone may write a Pulitzer Prize play that will become a classic, representative of the present period. A poet may give some immortal contributions to American poetry collections.

A few of our husky and agile friends might become sport page heroes. Perhaps there will be a knock-out king that will win the championship, or another Babe Ruth. Some of our female athletes may be members of the first women's football team. There will have to be a revision of rules, however, unless girls become greater spinach-eating fans.

Musical talent can lead to much opportunity for success in stage, radio, and cinema. What greater honor could be bestowed upon one of our golden voiced warblers than a debut at the Metropolitan! A concert tour for some of the others would provide a treat for the audience and a chance for fame for the performers.

Success for some talented girl might be won for styling and designing that will far surpass the crazy, modern ideas of Schiaparelli. A feather for the cap of anyone who has imagination enough for that! A class beauty may become the belle of television stars if this amusement facility is improved. A less ideal notoriety may be won by someone who will become Public Enemy No. 1. God forbid!

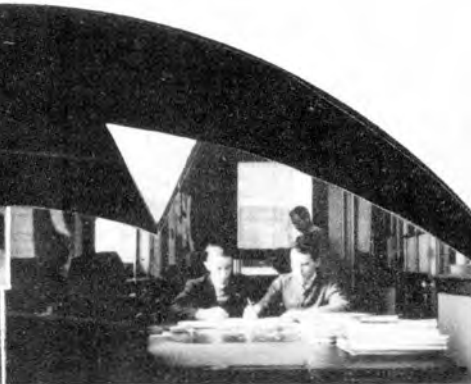

Some unexpected experience may have been garnered by our friends through their activities in school. Those ticket-selling demons might use their acquired techniques to sell vacuum cleaners to housewives or insurance to unsuspecting business men. Those expert homework evaders would well fill the positions of question and answer columnists. They're never stumped! Then these punsters who wander through their classes repeating their sadly worn-out jokes might become comedians. However, the general consensus of opinion is that the guillotine would be more fitting payment for their efforts.

Although almost all known territory has been explored, there is still much opportunity for daring explorers who are willing to probe into the mysteries of the stratosphere and sea. One or two of our fellow Thespians may win great acclaim as Barrymores and Bernhards. Maybe theirs will be an even greater success. There is no limit to the newspapermen, politicians, doctors, and lawyers that can come from our group.

To you, Class of June '39, a sincere toast is given for your success. May many laurel wreaths be placed upon your deserving brows and may happiness board your paths in life.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

THE National Honor Society is a nation-wide society in which the outstanding honor students of each school are enrolled. The principal points taken into consideration besides scholarship are service to school, leadership qualification, and general all-round character. Promptness, honesty, and reliability in an individual are the points considered when the final character check-up is made. The final decision is left to the principal.

THE Commercial Honor Society gives recognition to students of exceptional ability in the commercial field. All students in the eleventh and twelfth grades who have at least a B average in commercial subjects and who have shown ability in that field are eligible. The purpose of its existence is "to strive for high standards in scholarship, to promote better understanding of business conditions, and to create interest in the commercial field in our school."

COMMERCIAL HONOR SOCIETY

CRAFT GUILD

THE Craft Guild's main objectives are to stimulate and encourage an interest in fine craftsmanship and to develop a high standard of character. The qualifications for membership require satisfactory ratings in all related subjects, an excellent citizenship rating, proper school spirit, and an unusually high degree of skill in execution.

This organization has been a part of our school life in Jefferson since 1935.

THIS group represents the future doctors and lawyers of their generation. Being one of the most select clubs in the school, its main purpose is to create and maintain an interest in the study of the Latin language. Eligibility to membership is a "B" average at the end of the first quarter of the 10B grade. After admittance, if a person's grade drops below a "C", he is temporarily dropped until he shows improvement.

THE SCHOOL newspaper was started in 1932 when Jefferson became a senior high school. First named The Jeffer, it became in 1937 the Jefferson Journal. Its editors, except the first, have worked their way up from reporting. One of the present editors has had ten terms' service.

Service is voluntary, but there has always been a waiting list of students desiring to join the staff.

JEFFERSON JOURNAL

JEFFERSON SINGERS and CHOIR

THE Jefferson Singers is a small group of students selected from the various voice classes, who have brought fame and praise to Jefferson's musical department by their A Cappella music. THE Senior Choir is an organization open to all students who enjoy singing the better music offered to music lovers.

"Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast."

THE Girls' Athletic Council is an executive body that plans and directs all athletic activities of the girls, under the supervision of the health education teachers. Eligibility for membership depends upon participation in after school clubs, leadership, and sportsmanship.

THE Leaders' Club, some of whose members are in the action pictures, is composed of girls with outstanding leadership, who act as officials in the girls' athletic events.

PACED by the nimble feet of Joe Piedici and Frank Scarpula, the Blue and Gold booters formed one of the most feared teams in the league. Possessing the best defense, in Vorrasi, Kepler and Zaccardo, the Presidents improved with every game and ended the season tied for second place, with a record of six victories, two setbacks, and one tie.

WITH the same six men placing in every meet, the Jefferson harriers finished in third place—the highest position the team has ever captured. Gilbert Gilbert, the cross country king of Western New York State, added to his fine showing of three first places in four states by taking first place in the sectionals at Geneva. With only three men graduating, the Blue and Gold should prove a formidable club next season.

LED BY "all scholastic" Hammersla and Domenic Martino, who captured the individual scoring honors in the interscholastic league, the Presidents finished in a tie for third place for the best showing since the opening of the high school. Presenting an almost unbeatable aggregation to the leaders, the Edgerton Parkers lost three of their four reverses to the lower rate clubs.
