Twilight Ceremony on Gore Field Will Feature 105th Commencement

Garrison, Bone, and Abernethy Will be Principal Speakers — 155 Seniors Slated to Receive Diplomas

Shown above, from left, are Dr. W. S. Abernethy, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, Washington, D. C.; Dr. S. C. Garrison, president of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.; and Hon. Walter J. Bone, judge of North Carolina Superior Court, Nashville, N. C. Abernethy will preach the sermon, Garrison will make the commencement address, and Bone the alumni address.

Dr. Sidney Clarence Garrison, president of George Peabody College of Nashville, Tenn., will deliver the commencement address at Wake Forest College Monday evening, May 29, in the first outdoor commencement finale ever to be held on the local campus. One hundred and fifty-five seniors are candidates for degrees.

The commencement program will begin Sunday morning, May 28, with the baccalaureate sermon and will extend through the graduating exercises which are to be held on Gore Field at seven-thirty p.m. Monday. Dr. William S. Abernethy, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., will deliver the baccalaureate sermon in the local church at 8:00 Sunday evening, while Dr. Garrison will be the principal speaker at the graduation exercises. It is interesting to note that Dr. Garrison, who was a member of the class of 1911, was the fiftieth Wake Forest alumnus to become a college president.

Monday's program gets under way at 9:30 a.m. when the college band will give a concert on the campus. Following, at 10:30, the regular meeting of the board of trustees will be held. The final oratorical contest will be staged at 10:30 also, and contestants will compete for the Ward Medal. Medals to be awarded will be presented immediately following the contest.

Alumni activity Monday will be featured by the annual alumni luncheon, to be held in the college gymnasium at one o'clock. Ozmer L. Henry, Lumberton attorney of the class of 1914 and president of the general alumni association, will preside. The alumni address will be delivered by the Hon. Walter J. Bone, of Nashville, a member of the class of 1921 who is now a judge of the North Carolina Superior Court. Twelve classes will be holding reunions this year at 6:00 p.m. at Miss Jo Williams' Cafeteria. Included in that number are the classes of 1934, 1929, 1924, 1919, 1914, 1909, 1904, 1899, 1894, 1889, 1884, and 1879. All medical alumni are especially invited to attend the cancer clinic which is to be held at the William Amos Johnson Medical Building throughout Monday, May 29.

Other events to pack the day with activity for the returning alumni will include a golf tournament, held for the alumni and visitors, reminiscences by Drs. Sledd, Gulley, Cullom, Lynch, and Gorrell in the two society halls, open house at the president's home with all visitors invited, and a thirty-minute organ recital at 5:00 p. m. by Dr. H. M. Poteat.

The 105th year will end in a twilight ceremony on Gore field when Dr. Garrison will speak and the graduates will be awarded their diplomas.

Alumni who return and wish to stay over night will have the college dormitories at their disposal.

SPECIAL PROGRAM FOR DOCTORS

The Committee on Cancer of the N. C. State Medical Society, the Medical Alumni Association of the College and the Medical School have jointly planned a program on tumors for commencement day, that will allow the

Wake Forest Debaters Bring Back the Bacon

Wake Forest's intercollegiate debate team, coached by Prof. Zon Robinson, hung up additional laurels at the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament at Farmville, Va., April 28, 29. Colleges and universities from seven Southern states were represented at the meet.

Gene Worrell, veteran debater, won first place in extempore speaking and second place in oratory. Ralph Brumet captured the championship in impromptu speaking, while Bedford W. Black placed second in the same contest. The debate team was second in the competition, being defeated in the grand final debate by a two-to-one decision.

After the tournament the squad left for New York City, where they debated the College of the City of New York and visited the World's Fair.

In the North Carolina Intercollegiate Peace contest, at which six colleges were represented, and which was held at Wake Forest May 5, Ralph Brumet, of the Wake squad, was awarded a prize of $50.00 for the best oration.

List of Lawyers Being Prepared

In this issue of the ALUMNI NEWS we had hoped to be able to carry a list of Wake Forest alumni engaged in the practice of law in North Carolina, a list similar to those published earlier in the session of our ministers, doctors, and teachers. In preparing the list of attorneys, however, we encountered a practical difficulty which is peculiar to the law school—that of finding a considerable number of men who had transferred from other colleges and whose allegiance it is impossible to determine with our present information. Dean Stansbury is still at work on the problem and, by fall, hopes to have assembled sufficient data to publish at least a reasonably accurate list.

Faculty Members in Demand for Speeches

President Thurman D. Kitchin on the evening of June 1 will deliver the commencement address to the graduating class at the Medical College of the State of South Carolina in Charleston. He addressed recently father-son banquets at Winston-Salem and Rocky Mount and a district Rotary meeting in Fayetteville.

Dean Daniel B. Bryan's current engagements for addresses at public school commencements include Lumberton, Dillon, S. C., Stem, Bunn, Bonlee, Hallsboro, Bolivia, Goldston, Ayden, Nashville, Pikeville, Murfreesboro, Hall's School of Clinton, Beaufort, and Townesville.

Dr. H. M. Poteat has commencement engagements at Woodland, Southern Pines, and the Gaston School of Roanoke Rapids. He made the Phi Beta Kappa address during the spring initiations at William and Mary College and the Honors' Day address at Howard College in Birmingham, Ala.

Professor J. L. Memory, Jr., recently addressed county commencements in Bertie and Brunswick counties and made school commencement addresses at the Southwood School of Kinston, Salemburg, Roseboro, Penderlea, Pactolus, Grimesland, Rolesville, Hertford, Helena, Lillington, the Rosewood School of Goldsboro, and Saratoga.

Dr. O. T. Binkley preached the commencement sermon at Walkertown, Tobaccoville, Madison, Leaksville, and Campbell College, and made the commencement address at Erwin.

Dr. J. A. Easley preached the commencement sermon Sunday to the high school seniors at Wake Forest and Millbrook, and made the commencement address at Washington.

Dr. A. C. Reid spoke at the commencement finals at Severn; George Copple, at Whitakers; and Zon Robinson, at Benhaven.

Dr. J. Hendren Gorrell

By JASPER L. MEMORY, Jr., '21

A Man "... not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." —Romans 12:11.

At the close of this session, Dr. J. Hendren Gorrell, one of the last of the old war horses, will be placed on the retired list.

Rounding out his three score and ten, and 45 years as a member of the Wake Forest faculty, "Old Finxtus" (students' contraction of for instance) will join Drs. Gulley, Lynch, Cullom, and Sledd who last year gave up teaching and were granted an annual stipend by the Board of Trustees.

Although enjoying a well-deserved rest, he will still be associated with the college and will become a "professor at large," as President Kitchin aptly expressed it.

With characteristic love for work, Dr. Gorrell doesn't "care to be publicized as an additional member of the Wake Forest museum of antiques," but prefers rather to move off the stage quietly without any bluster or words of fulsome eulogy.

Look at his face on the cover of this magazine and you will see lines which fill the description of the verse from Romans appearing above beneath his name.

NOT SLOTHFUL IN BUSINESS

If there ever was a man who has filled this requirement, we have him here. Let the business be financial, religious, or educational, and he will still be Exhibit A. For over 30 years he served as financial secretary and treasurer of the Wake Forest Baptist Church. He took the money that Professor J. B. Carlyle raised and erected the Alumni building, and through his wise management of the Denmark Loan Fund, the principal has grown from $25,000 to $50,000.

But Dr. Gorrell's chief business has been the building of men. The medium he has used has been the German language, and the excellence of his instruction is reflected in the ease with which his students have spoken the language when they went over to "the Fatherland." With no tutoring other than that he received under Dr. Gorrell, Irwin Kitchin, for instance, after graduating from Wake Forest, went to Freiburg, Germany, and at the age of 23 was awarded the Ph.D. degree in biology. His dissertation, written of course in German, was termed by his major professors, a paragon of excellence.

But long after his students have forgotten all the German they know, they will remember the lesson of devotion to duty that Dr. Gorrell practices and preaches "from the dawn's early light 'til the twilight's last gleaming."

About twenty years ago a group of men enrolled in senior Spanish were seated in their classroom, the last to the left on the first floor of the Alumni building. The second bell had rung, and Dr. Gorrell had not shown up. It was a rare incident, because throughout the four years he had taught these men he had enjoyed particularly good health and not only had not failed to meet a class, but also, up to that time, had never been late.

Dr. Folk, now a dignified associate professor of English here but then not the most docile member of that class, arose to make investigation. He returned from the hall, saying "Boys, here he comes, and there are only three magnolia trees between him and the building." After a brief conspiracy, all of us except Arthur Helms (now principal of the Central Junior High School in Greensboro) jumped out of the window and under the eaves of the building awaited developments. In a moment, Dr. Gorrell entered and, after clearing his throat, inquired, "Helms, where are the boys?"

"I don't know," was the gracious reply.

"All right, turn to page 27 and read the lesson."

Taking no thought of the morrow, the rest of the afternoon was spent right merrily by those of us who were outside. In the party were "Turk" Kesler, now a contractor in Winston-Salem; W. A. Queen, state chemist; Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the N. C. Historical Commission; myself, and a number of others. But the next day, we filed in early for class and with some apprehension awaited the consequences. Dr. Gorrell entered and said, "Young gentlemen, if I had time, I would like to preach you my sermon on 'When I Became a Man I Put Away Childish Things.'"

FERVENT IN SPIRIT

One of the qualities which have characterized Dr. Gorrell's teaching is his fervent spirit and personal interest in every man who has ever enrolled in one of his classes. Many a freshman who came to the campus without friend or acquaintance received from him a warm greeting and an encouraging word that inspired greater effort and constituted a fitting introduction to the tradition of friendliness that has characterized the college throughout its 105 years' history.

Back in 1918 I enrolled as a freshman at Wake Forest. Not knowing anyone, I soon became discouraged and began to wonder how it would do to return home. One morning I walked into Dr. Gorrell's Spanish classroom and showed him a Dean's excuse, which granted me permission to be away for ten days with the glee club. "All right," Dr. Gorrell said, and then muttered to himself, "Memory is a good man." However inaccurate the appraisal may have been, I knew from then on that I had at least one friend on the campus, and from that day throughout the session my assignments in Spanish were among the first that were prepared.

Dr. Gorrell's personal interest in his students has not ended on their graduation day. He has written numerous personal letters to them after they have gone out into the world, rejoicing in their successes and sympathizing in their sorrows—the sort of thing that makes an alumnus love his Alma Mater and cherish his college days.

Years after my graduation, I happened to be in New York and chanced to pick up a Spanish newspaper. Seeing that I was able to read it, I scribbled on the margin a salutation to Dr. Gorrell and told him that the paper brought back happy memories, to which he replied, in part, "I was most agreeably reminded of the pleasant days passed by you and me in the study of Spanish at Wake Forest. . . . My chief reward for my work here lies in the affection of the men who were co-laborers. . . . Your message meant much more than you can imagine to one whose chief aim in life has always been to be a helpful and, if possible, an inspiring guide to his younger associates. . . ."

SERVING THE LORD

Dr. Gorrell, throughout his 45 years' connection with the college, has regarded it not only as his duty but also as his happy privilege to serve his Master both in the classroom and in the state. Although not an ordained minister, he nevertheless is foremost among the "blockade" variety, and from many pulpits has forcefully presented the cause of Christ.

Let him tell you, in his own words, how he happened to come to Wake Forest:

HOW I CAME TO WAKE FOREST

By J. H. GORRELL

"I will a plain, unvarnished tale deliver."

In June 1894 I received the Doctor's degree from the Johns Hopkins University and all summer I sought in vain for a collegiate position. It seems that unemployment in educational work was as general then as now. At last on a Saturday toward the middle of September an embarrassment of riches suddenly befell me in the shape of the offer of two positions—the first was the Presidency of a college in Louisiana with the recommendation of my father's friend, Col. William Preston Johnson, then president of Tulane; the second, with a small salary, was that of Acting

Professor of Modern Languages at Wake Forest. My father, staunch Baptist as he was, advised me to accept the latter offer and I followed his wise counsel.

So the next Monday evening found me on a little train in Southern Virginia on my way to Durham. A short time after passing the borders of North Carolina, two men whose faces shone with goodness and kindness entered the car and seated themselves in front of me. With some hesitation I volunteered to make inquiry from them about hotel accommodations in Durham. After replying to my question, the younger of the two introduced himself as Rev. J. A. Beam and presented his companion, Rev. J. H. Vernon—two of the sweetest and most Christlike spirits that it was my blessed privilege to know and love for over a quarter of a century from that time. Brother Beam, with his ever active interest in young men, asked me several personal questions, which led to my telling him that I was on the way to Wake Forest. Instantly his eye brightened and he offered a number of suggestions that might be of use to me as a freshman just about to enter his Alma Mater (I was then just turning twenty-five and slight and boyish in appearance). On learning the real purpose of my trip, he became more interested than ever, spoke of himself and his companion as loyal sons of the old college and indulged in reminiscences, many of which I have never forgotten.

About nightfall we reached Durham and Brother Beam and I occupied the same room in a small hotel which has long since disappeared. Before retiring that night my dear friend and I knelt side by side at our bed and he gently placed one arm around my neck and, bearing me, as it were, before the Throne of Grace, made the most fervent and to me, under the circumstances, the most beautiful petition I ever heard, asking the blessing of the Most High to be present in generous measure on the young teacher, and that I might be used by God as an agent not only to lead the young men into a knowledge of books and of life, but also into the knowledge of "the truth that is in Christ Jesus." Dear sainted friend, if I have accomplished any good during the subsequent two score years of teaching at your old college, I owe the impulse and encouragement in great measure to that prayer of yours offered in that dingy room of an old lodging-house.

At the unheard of hour of five o'clock the next morning we were on the ca-boose of a slow freight on our way to Raleigh, where I was introduced at the Recorder office to Dr. C. T. Bailey, who was evidently not prepossessed by my personal appearance and told me so with that peculiar trait of humor characteristic of him. The midday train for Wake Forest found me in company with a representative of the Philomathesian Society who had been sent to Raleigh for the purpose of securing the new Professor as an honorary member of the Phi's. My old friend, Ben Sledd, with his shining bald head and fiery red beard met me at the station—accompanied by what seemed to me a "standing army." A shout of cordial welcome by the student body, an embrace by Sledd and I entered upon my first day at Wake Forest.

I came, I saw—a beautiful campus with its magnificent grove of stately oaks, four plain brick buildings, our revered leader, Dr. Charles E. Taylor, and eight devout and devoted professors, nearly two hundred enthusiastic students, a limited endowment, and an unlimited opportunity for work—and I conquered? No, but I plunged with a feeling of thankfulness and hopefulness into the struggle which has kept me busy for what my old friend, Professor Mills, would call "forty years in the wilderness."

"FRIENDS OF WAKE FOREST LIBRARY" HOLD DINNER

FRIEND OF LIBRARY

Gilbert T. Stephenson, director of Trust Research of the Graduate School of Banking of the American Bankers' Association of Wilmington, Delaware, on the evening of May 2 addressed the Friends of the Wake Forest College Library at their second annual dinner at the Williams Boarding Club at Wake Forest.

His address, which showed careful preparation, tended to stimulate further endeavor on the part of the Library Friends.

Any one interested in becoming a member of the organization may do so by sending his name, without obligation, to Dr. Quincy Adams, director of the Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington, D. C.

Irving E. Carlyle, Winston-Salem attorney, was toast master. Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh, editor of The Progressive Farmer, read a list of gifts made to the library during the past year which includes a number of very rare volumes. It was a significant meeting of men prominent in the business and professional world.

The gift of Dr. Joseph Quincy Adams, Director of the Folger Shakespeare Library, of the King James Version of the Bible printed in 1611 further enriches the already important collection of Bibles in the Wake Forest College Library. Another recent acquisition through the McGregor Fund, is that of the Dearden copy of the Saur Bible, printed by Christopher Saur in Germantown, Pennsylvania in 1743. This was the first Bible printed in America in a modern language and only some fifty copies are known to exist.

The copy in the Wake Forest Library was on exhibition at the Book Fair in New York in 1937.

Other important Bibles in the Wake Forest College Library are the so-called Breeches or Geneva Bible, London, 1599; The Holy Bible, containing the Old Testament and the New, London, 1612; The Holy Bible; together with the Apocrypha, Philadelphia, 1798; Latin Vulgate Bible, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, 1566; Eliae Hutteri Biblia (with text in Hebrew, Chaldean, Greek, Latin, German and Italian in parallel columns), Nuremberg, Germany, 1599; Mandarin Bible, 1927; Shanghai ("first complete one-volume Bible available to all China").

In addition to the more unusual items mentioned, the library contains a collection of some one hundred copies of the Bible in various editions; together with the New Testament in Burmese (translated by Adoniram Judson, and printed in Maulmein in 1832); Latin, Greek, Chinese, French and Spanish. The last named, published in New York in 1864, bears the following inscription on the fly-leaf: "James G. Higgins, Lt. 20th N. C. vol. Johnson Island, Ohio, January 19, 1865."

The College Library, including the separate divisions for law and medicine, contains about 75,000 volumes.

doctors an opportunity, in addition to enjoying the regular commencement program, to receive a good morsel of scientific information.

At 10:00 a.m. in the auditorium of the Johnson Medical Building, Dr. Hillyer Rudisill, Jr., Professor of Radiology of the Medical College of S. C., will give a lecture and clinic on the use of radiology in the diagnosis and treatment of tumors. At 2:00 p.m. Dr. J. Shelton Horsley of Richmond, Virginia, will discuss tumors of the gastrointestinal tract. At both sessions Doctors will be privileged to bring any patient or case for discussion that they care to present.

In addition to this medical program, the alumni will have an opportunity to attend other alumni functions during the day. At 1:00 p.m. at the College cafeteria they may attend the alumni luncheon and hear the address by Hon. Walter J. Bone. At 6:00 p.m. also in the college cafeteria the Medical School Alumni Association will hold its regular annual meeting and dinner. As is well known, this meeting is usually held at the time of the meeting of the State Medical Society. In view of the fact that this year the Society is meeting on a cruise to Bermuda and so many men could not spare the time to go, it was deemed advisable to have the commencement meeting instead. Following the alumni meeting those present may attend the graduating exercises at Gore Field at 7:30 p.m.

FURMAN BIGGS MADE ALUMNI HEAD IN ROBESON

Robeson County alumni of Wake Forest elected Furman K. Biggs to succeed Ozmer L. Henry as president, at a banquet meeting held in Lumberton Thursday evening, April 20.

The proposed consolidation of Wake Forest and Meredith College was discussed by alumni, including trustees of both schools, and those present went on record as favoring the plan. "Subject to the feasibility of the plan and further consideration," Mr. Henry said, "the opinion is that consolidation should be effected."

Officers elected to serve during the coming year are, besides President Biggs, Rev. Troy Jones of Red Springs, vice president; and Dr. L. R. Hedgpeth of Lumberton, secretary-treasurer.

Wake Forest's football prospects for the 1939 season were discussed by Coach D. C. Walker. Athletic Director Jim Weaver revealed plans for the building of a new athletic stadium.

Those present at the meeting were:

Lumberton—Erwin T. Williams, Cecil L. Thompson, John N. Walker, E. M. Johnson, Leslie J. Huntley, Jr., Romulus A. Hedgpeth, Robert Allen McIntyre, L. MEDICAL FACULTY ACTIVE

The month of April has found members of the Medical Faculty in demand for various scientific addresses. Dr. C. C. Carpenter, Dean of the School, entered actively in the Cancer Control Program sponsored by the Women's Field Army, making addresses at Marietta, Elizabethtown, Hertford, Wake Forest, Salisbury and Rich Square. In addition, he made radio addresses over stations WRAL in Raleigh and WSTP in Salisbury. He also prepared an address on Cancer which was delivered in his absence by Dr. R. P. Morehead before the State Medical Society.

Dr. R. P. Morehead, Assistant Professor of Pathology, occupied one of the key positions on the program of the State Medical Society during his Bermuda cruise. He spoke on the subject of "Anemia" before the general session. Speakers before this session are selected by the various Sections as the leading address presented by that section. Dr. Morehead represented the section on the General Practice of Medicine and Surgery.

Dr. Ivan Proctor, Professor of Obstetrics, Dr. C. C. Carpenter, Professor of Pathology and Dr. R. P. Morehead, Assistant Professor of Pathology have just released for publication in the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology an article dealing with diseases of the female breast, particularly as it relates to cyst formation. This work has been along the line of developing the knowledge of normal anatomy, histology, and physiology as it relates to disease. They have been requested by the J. B. Lippincott Co. to develop the knowledge of other organs of the body along similar lines, for publication by them in book form.

DR. HUNTER JONES HONORED

Dr. O. Hunter Jones of Charlotte, N. C., son of Mr. Otis H. Jones, of Wake Forest, was awarded, during the State Medical Society Cruise to Bermuda, the Moore County Medal, for the paper that was selected as the best delivered before the Society during 1938. The title of Dr. Jones' paper was "Pelvic Architecture and Classification with Its Practical Application."

Dr. Jones graduated from the Wake Forest Medical School in the class of 1931, and from the Medical School of Columbia University in 1933. He served a two-year rotating internship at the Methodist Episcopal Hospital of New York and studied Obstetrics at the Sloane Maternity Hospital in that city for another year, later returning to the Methodist Episcopal as a Resident Physician. He is now practicing in Charlotte.

This distinction is one that is eagerly sought by all physicians of the State.

LEGION HEAD

We present to you here Burgin Pennell of Asheville, alumnus of the class of 1917, who this year is serving as Commander of the North Carolina American Legion. Both of his immediate predecessors are Wake Forest men—H. C. Blackwell of Fayetteville and Judge Hubert E. Olive of Lexington.

PROSPECTIVE PREACHERS

Of the 20 ministerial students in the graduating class this spring, six are expecting to continue their studies at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary this fall, two will do further work at Wake Forest, and one is going to the Southwestern Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas.

PHILADELPHIA ALUMNI MEET

The Philadelphia chapter of Wake Forest alumni was organized at a meeting held in the Penn Athletic Club in Philadelphia, Saturday, April 29.
