

DA VINO COMMEDIA

BY AL DENTE ALLEGORY

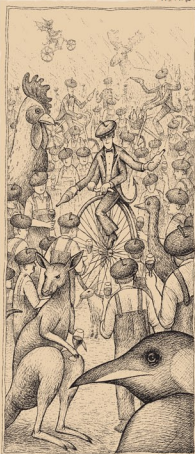

"A Giant Southern Leopard known to be fierce."

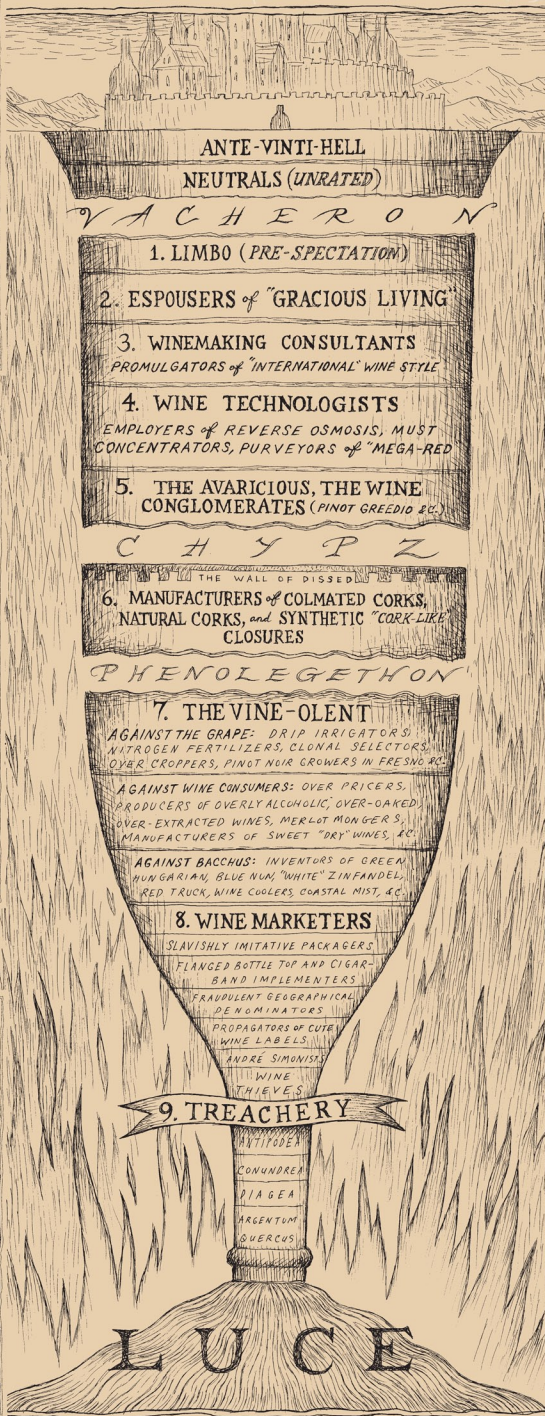

"We must endure for passage, but disagreeable ship, to ferry us across the treacherous Vacheron River."

"We stood before a warehouse of souls (not so bonny) doomed."

"To the warmly hands great confuses of Red Bicycle a waiter was serving."

The Vinferno

Some like it Hot, which is a Damned good Thing, as a Legion of Malo-factors, unregenerate Zinners, cork-sniffing Collaboracionists, indeed all manner of Oenil-doers, are heading straight to Wine Hell. Those who have lost their immortal Sols are doomed to an Oenternity of domestic Chablis or worse.

"A squat, beetle-browed figure, puffing mightily, out of breath."
