GARDENING CORNER

FROM THE GLOUCESTER MASTER GARDENERS

Spring pruning time again!

Easter cactus and an orchid bloom at Maxine Hudgins's home in Port Haywood.

BY SUSAN CAMP

March is the month on the Middle Peninsula that heralds the beginning of spring. We still awaken to frost on many mornings. In the past, we have had snow in March, but this year, the daffodils are popping out of the ground, and a few friends have posted photos of vellow blossoms on Facebook. Soon, the forsythia will follow. March also is the month when it is warm enough to prune our deciduous trees.

The prime pruning period for many tree and shrub species in our region is Feb. 15 through March 15. If you miss these dates by a week or two, your trees and shrubs will survive.

Spring pruning should be a part of regular plant maintenance. Pruning can improve a plant's health; reshape and revive an old plant or train a new one; control a plant's size; and improve or increase flower or fruit production. Pruning also serves to remove or decrease branches and limbs that could cause injury or property damage.

A recent post on the Facebook page of a professional gardener contained a helpful diagram of a leafless tree, illustrating the types of problem branches that should be removed. The diagram is included in the University of Maryland Extension Home & Garden Information entry "Pruning Trees."

Use the correct tool for the pruning job. Hand pruners, loppers, shears, and pruning saws come in various sizes. Read the tool instructions to avoid using a tool improperly. Buy good quality tools that will last, and keep them clean, oiled, and sharp.

Disinfect tools between cuts to avoid spreading disease, and between plants if no disease is found. Isopropyl alcohol (70 to 99 percent); the old-fashioned brown mouthwash, undiluted; and the household cleaner that contains benzalkonium chloride, mixed in a 10 percent solution of 1 part cleaner to 10 parts water are good choices for tool disinfection. Pine cleaners and chlorine bleach will corrode metal

A chainsaw is not a good pruning tool, especially if the gardener is standing several feet in the air on a ladder. Aside from the obvious peril to the operator, a chainsaw leaves a ragged wound in the plant tissue that can lead to increased opportunities for infection and insect infestation. A chainsaw may be necessary if the branch to be pruned is greater than 3 inches in diameter, but pruning of large trees is best left to a professional arborist.

If you need to stand on a ladder, place it on level ground and have an assistant hold it steady. Take care when cutting branches above your head to avoid being struck. Use goggles to protect your eyes from airborne sawdust and bark.

When you are ready to prune, observe the tree or shrub from all sides. Remove dead, damaged, or diseased twigs and branches first. Next prune malformed branches and those that cross each other or rub together. Remove suckers at the bases of trees and "water sprouts," the straight, vertical, whip-like branches that grow from previously pruned sites.

Avoid pruning branches and twigs flush with the trunk. Instead, make your pruning cut at a 45° to 60° angle in front of the branch collar, which is the swollen or bumpy area at the base of a branch. Leaving the branch collar intact helps the wound to heal more quickly and deter disease and decay.

Remove lower branches gradually over several years to provide clearance for foot traffic and lawn mowers. At least two-thirds of a tree's total height must consist of living branches.

If pruning has been neglected for several years, it may take three or four seasons to achieve the desired aesthetically appealing shape. Never remove more than one-quarter of a tree or shrub's branches in one season.

Pruning calendars for deciduous and evergreen shrubs and trees are available on the Virginia Cooperative Extension website at https://pubs.ext.vt.edu. Virginia Cooperative Extension (VCE) Publication 430-455 "A Guide to Successful Pruning: Pruning Basics and Tools" provides further information on the topic.

Learning pie-making from her great-grandmother, age 102

BY BETTY WRENN DAY

Here is a bright spot from the past year of frustration and uncertainty; it should bring a smile to your face and find a warm place in your heart.

Åt 102 years of age Mary Jo Robins has not forgotten how to make the pies that she used to bake for her family, guests and friends, especially for her home church, Salem United Methodist. She no longer resides close to Haven Beach in the Diggs area of Mathews where she lived for 97 years. Mary Jo now resides at Riverside Sanders Retirement Community in Gloucester.

One day last fall the kitchen at Sanders was graced with the presence of a long-standing and excellent cook, Mary Jo Robins. She and her great-granddaughter, Emma Wood, RN, were there where "Gangy" (this is what all the 13 grandchildren and one great-grandchild call her) showed Emma how to make pies. Working from memory, using no recipes, Mary Jo directed and also took part in the baking.

Emma wrote following the day with her great-grandmother: "It has been hard for isolated nursing home, skilled and assisted living residents, to say the very least. There are no words for it. But today I got to learn from the best. She has not forgotten one step to baking pies. She has not stopped smiling and laughing. She has stayed strong and faithful as ever. She taught me more than just her secrets to baking today (please tell me how this woman at 102 can still bake her apples just from memory, no recipe) and I will never ever take it for granted. I will always be amazed by you, my Gangy.

Mary Jo's daughter, Becky Livermon, recalls her mother's cooking while growing up: "As a child I loved to eat the baked strips of piecrust that were made from leftover dough. My grandmother Clara Morgan's house was always filled on Christmas morning with family, friends and wonderful food. When she gave up housekeeping (we lived next door) my mother and father took up the tradition. Their home was the gathering hub. Family and friends were always welcome to their home, table or picnic table. My mother was never afraid to try new recipes even when in her 90s. It wasn't unusual to find her skimming magazines or cookbooks. She always prepared several dishes for her church potluck supper in case someone couldn't bring their own. The grandchildren always knew where to look for her already made desserts and cakes. She sat them in the utility room on the washer and dryer."

And at 102 Mary Jo is still interested in cooking and life itself. "My mother loves God and continues to read several devotionals and her Bible daily," Becky said. "When asked her secret to a long life she usually replies 'just keep going.'

CHOCOLATE PIE

1 c. sugar ½ c. cornstarch

½ c. cocoa or 2 squares of chocolate

½ stick butter or margarine

2 eggs, beaten 1 tsp. vanilla

2-21/2 c. milk

1 small carton Cool Whip

Mix sugar, cornstarch, and cocoa. Add beaten eggs and ½ c. milk. Stir until smooth. Add remaining milk and butter. Cook in double boiler until very thick. Remove from heat and add vanilla. To make pie extra smooth, put in blender for 1-2 minutes. Place cooked mixture in baked pie shell. Top with Cool Whip and chopped nuts.

Emma Wood gets a cooking lesson she will never forget from her great-grandmother, Mary Jo Robins.

2 tsp. vanilla

Cream sugar, margarine and butter together. Add eggs, one at a time, beating each well. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add to batter, alternating with milk. Add vanilla. Cook at 300°F. for 1½ hours. This also may be used for a layer cake, cooking in 3 (9-inch) layer pans at 325°F. for 30 minutes.

SOUR CREAM CAKE

½ c. veg. oil 1 c. butter

3 c. sugar

6 eggs 1 tsp. baking powder ½ tsp. salt

3 c. flour 1 c. sour cream

1 tsp. vanilla or almond extract

1 tsp. lemon extract Cream oil, butter, and sugar. Add eggs one at a time. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt.

Add alternately with sour cream. Stir in flavorings. Bake 1 hour 15 minutes at 325°F.

CUSTARD

4 c. milk 3 eggs, beaten 1½-2 c. sugar ½ c. cornstarch

Pinch of salt 2-3 tsp. vanilla

Mix cornstarch with 2 c. milk and stir until dissolved. Add salt. Heat over low to medium heat. In a large mixing bowl, combine remaining 2 c. milk, sugar, and eggs and slowly add to heated mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until it begins to thicken. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Cover with wax paper and allow to cool. This custard makes everything better!

Right at Home

Right at Home, a Kilmarnock business established in 2016 by Katherine Keith, provides senior citizens with personal care, cooking, light cleaning, and independent living activities.

Keith said her company's mission is to improve the quality of life for seniors who have chosen to "age in place." But there have been some challenges. After losing her elderly but still active parents in 2019 in a car accident, she was subsequently diagnosed with cancer for the second time. Those difficult experiences, she said, "added an even greater sense of mission to what we do."

"My staff is extraordinary, so somehow we made it through that year," she said. "And, of course, we have all struggled to adapt to COVID, but we provided personal protective equipment and followed all CDC guidelines and have been able to keep our clients safe.'

Chesapeake Marine Training Institute

Amanda Symonds is president and owner of Chesapeake Marine Training Institute in Hayes. The institute offers maritime training to the workboat community, recreational boating industry, government agencies, and shipping companies throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

A 2001 internship with CMTI was Symonds' first exposure to the institute, which was founded by Guy Sorensen in 1992. She was able to participate through Gloucester High School's Academy of Finance. After graduation, she went in Arts and Science. Over time, Symonds' responsibilities at CMTI increased. She began serving mariners as a licensed consultant handling applications before advancing to office manager and then general manager. When Sorensen made the decision to retire in 2016, Symonds was prepared to take the helm.

Symonds said that over the past three years the institute has implemented an online experience that allows mariners to view upcoming schedules, enroll in classroom and online courses, study for examinations, and purchase retail items. Further, she said that CMTI reacts to changes in an ever-changing world by embracing the challenge of meeting mandated requirements and remaining committed to bringing each mariner a better experience.

Symonds has been married for 16 years to her high school sweetheart, Mike Symonds, and they have two children: Hannah, a seventh grader at Peasley Middle School, and Carter, a fourth grader at Bethel Elementary School.

Gloucester Supply & Ace Hardware

Kati Cook

Kati Cook is the manager for her family's business, Gloucester Supply & Ace Hardware on Hayes Road, Hayes. She began working there at the age of 17, and said she never looked back.

Established by her fatherin-law, Mark Cook, Gloucester Supply has been in business for 45 years, with the support of his wife, Valerie Cook. Kati Cook said her father-in-law made the business a staple in the community, "and I hope I am doing the same.

"We are proud to help support the community, and grateful that they continue to support our family business," she said. "The customers over the years have become friends, and we hope they feel the same about us.'

Gloucester Supply offers hand tools, fasteners, paint supplies, plumbing, and electrical supplies for basic home repair and updating. There's a boating section that has fiberglass supplies, bottom paint, anchors, bilge pumps, and other items, and a garden section that has garden seeds, grass seed,

The business also offers a range of services, including fiberglass and aluminum screen repair, wick replacement for kerosene heaters, and storm window repair.

Cook said the family tries to maintain "some of the classic hardware nostalgia" in the store while moving forward and keeping the product mix relevant.

A South Carolina native, Cook has lived in Gloucester since the age of 7, graduating from Gloucester High School before attending Christopher Newport University for a while.

D&K Embroidery

Debbie Riddett said her business, D&K Embroidery, grew out of a personal hobby. In the 1990s, she began making country bunnies and other dolls and selling them at craft shows and festivals. Then she got more creative with a small home embroidery machine, making items for her daughter and by request for other people.

"Word of mouth really helped launch my business into what it is today," she said. In 1997, she opened D&K Embroidery at her home on Hickory Fork Road in Pinetta. The business offers embroidery services while subspecializing in screen print transfers on a variety of textiles, from hats and jackets to shoes, sports bags, and purses. Products can be ordered for customization, or she can work with customer-owned items. She provides services for individuals, organizations, and corporations.

Riddett said that everything she does is self-taught. She pored over instruction manuals for hours and hours to learn the computer applications for design and embroidery machines. It was a trial-and-error process for both her and her husband, Kenny, who learned about the mechanics of the machinery so he could provide assistance with repairs.

A Gloucester native and Gloucester High School graduate, Riddett said she runs the business with the help of her husband, who is employed by Caruso, Inc., but helps on nights and weekends; her daughter Christine, who is an RN but helps with sales and social media marketing; and her friend Eva, who helps with displays, onsite sales, and processing customer orders.

J.K. Redmond Funeral Home

Kimberly Redmond Cosby, owner and manager of the J.K. Redmond Funeral Home at Shacklefords, faced her greatest challenge early on.

The funeral home was my father's business," she said. "He passed away during my senior year in high school. I became the owner

In addition to running a business at a very young age, Cosby said, "I had to overcome a lot of negativity-'she's young, she's a girl, what can she do?' I had the support of my mother, Susie Young, my aunt, Cora Young, my cousin, Kevin Young, and Jesus, and I knew that was enough."

The funeral home grew from its original 1970 building to the current building, constructed in 1981, where, "we arrange, organize, and direct funeral services for the families we serve," Cosby said.

Having grown up in the Glenns section of Gloucester, Cosby graduated from Gloucester High School and John Tyler Community College, and went into funeral service, "following the wisdom I learned from my dad and many other funeral directors I have known."

She is married to Shawn A. Cosby, a novelist from Mathews County.

The Silver Box

Gloucester native Martha Soles started The Silver Box in 2001, and she hasn't looked back.

After graduating from high school, Soles worked as the assistant manager at Southern Department Store, then went into the banking sector. But she came back to retail by establishing her own business on Gloucester Main Street.

Soles's shop offers sterling silver jewelry; women's clothing, shoes and accessories; Pandora jewelry; men's T-shirts; and a variety of products by Lily Pulitzer and Simply Southern.

Last year, when COVID-19

hit, Soles saw it as an obstacle rather than a deal-breaker, and she ended up doing "extremely well" by offering online shopping and curbside pick-up.

Window Creations

Mary Jo Green's dream from the time she was 10 years old was to do couture sewing for a living, but that didn't happen right away. Instead, she fulfilled her mother's dream first and became a nurse, graduating from the Stuart Circle School of Nursing in Richmond in 1973 and working in the nursing field for a decade.

Then in 1983, she made up her mind to pursue her dream of establishing her own business, Window Creations LLC of Hayes.

She began with an old Singer sewing machine and a wall phone in an 8'x12' bedroom at her home on Hunter Lane.

Sandra Crittenden

Sandra Crittenden is new to the real estate field, having begun her career with Century 21 Nachman Realty in Haves just last month. She offers real estate advice for both buyers and sellers, seeking to provide a smooth and satisfying process for all clients.

"Deciding to start something new when you are almost 50 years old is challenging," said Crittenden.

But she believes she's up to that challenge.

A teacher for five years before going into bookkeeping for 15 years, Crittenden returned to the classroom three years ago. She said she has always focused on placing herself in a position to succeed in her career while also putting her family first, supplementing her husband Charlie's income in various ways and doing whatever it takes to make ends meet and raise her daughters, Keely, Caroline and Morgan.

So when COVID-19 hit last year and the world changed drastically, Crittenden starting examining her options. She said the teaching delivery method had changed, but, more importantly, public school numbers had decreased, and it was difficult to know what the future would hold. She decided to enroll in an online real estate class, and she's now selling real estate.

Consociate Media

Stephanie Heinatz established Consociate Media in Gloucester in 2011, offering marketing, public relations, and communications to a wide range of clients.

Through a blend of marketing, media, and management techniques, the female-owned business "uses the rich traditions of storytelling and modern communications to help market businesses," said

Heinatz. "When you ask what triumphs Consociate Media has had over its first 10 years in business, I point to the people," Heinatz said. "Every single time a person chooses Consociate Media to tell its story, to work for their business, we consider it a triumph. Every single time a person chooses to work for Consociate Media, to tell other people's stories, we consider it a triumph. Why? Because business is personal, on every level."

An Army brat, Heinatz was born in Germany, where she spent most of childhood, then moved to Gloucester in the early 1990s. A graduate of Christopher Newport University, she has a background in journalism, media training, public relations, strategic communications, crisis communications and marketing.

Her husband and business partner is Rudy Heinatz III. Additional partners in Consociate Media, "who are like [her] work family,' include Mark Harris, Brian Harris and Michael Kimball, she said.

New church forming in Middlesex County is holding four informational meetings in the coming weeks to share the vision and plans for Salt Church, a new church being started in Middlesex County. The first of those meetings will be tonight.

Clark and his wife Natalie are both Mathews natives. They have been married for 13 years, and have three sons. Clark has been an ordained minister of the Gospel for 13 years. His wife is a homemaker and private voice coach of La Voce Studio.

Salt Church will be focused on making disciples who make disciples according to the Great Commission of Jesus Christ, a release said. This non-denominational church will prioritize close brotherhood within the congregation and will live on the mission of Jesus as a New Testament family, the release stated.

"Jesus told His people they are the 'salt of the earth.' For us, the name 'Salt' speaks to

Pastor John Michael Clark the fact that the believers in the church will be noticeable. You may love the flavor, you may hate the flavor, but you won't be confused about the flavor. And it will not be vanilla. Salt also has a preserving ability. It's God's desire that His people will preserve, bless, and strengthen their neighbors and their communities, and Salt Church will seek

BE STILL and KNOW

When we are in trouble, what do we do? Leap into action? Is doing something better than doing nothing? It is if that something is asking God for help...if we can stop trying to control things and listen for His guidance. Consider what God said to Job... "Pay attention, Job, and listen to me; be silent, and I will speak" (Job 33.31). Worship each week and grow closer to God, be ready to listen for His wisdom.

LIFELINES

BY DR. ED JORDAN

March forth!

We all have key dates in our lives, marking important decisions or events. We remember graduations, marital and career anniversaries, deaths, and other life-changing events. March 4 represents a turning point for our family, and for our friends in

After a 1986 trip to Europe during which we spent an eye-opening eight days behind the Iron Curtain in Budapest, Hungary, we began to be drawn to the thought of becoming missionaries in Hungary, and contacted our denomination's missionary sending agency. Long story short, when the Iron Curtain fell, we were ready to go.

In 1991 we sold our belongings, and moved our family of four to Hungary, to live and serve among Hungarian Baptists. The decision to sell, or give away all that you have, leave your parents and kids' grandparents behind, and travel to live in another country six thousand miles away, was a daunting one. I had just completed my doctorate, and found myself in a culture where their language was among the three most difficult in the world, where few people spoke English, and where I could not even say: "My name is Ed Jordan" in Hungarian (Magyar). I took years to try to become functional in Hungarian.

Everything was different there. The country had just gained freedom from Russia, and the story of how the Hungarians spurred the fall of the Berlin Wall and the crumbling of the Iron Curtain is a fascinating and inspiring one: you should look it up! But as a result, Eastern Europe was experiencing their first freedom in almost 50 years.

Hungarian language and culture for more than ten years. It was always difficult linguisnightmare due to communist control of the past. But we made lifelong friends, served joyed every minute of it.

new leadership of top-down approach and goals of the organization.

The model for successful missions is revealed in the life of Jesus as stated in John 1:14 (CSB): "The Word became flesh and dwelt among us. We observed his glory, the glory as the one and only Son from the Father, full of grace and truth." Jesus was the ultimate missionary, communicating God's love to humanity. He humbled Himself and came to be like us, so that we could become connected to God and live motivated by God's love and grace.

Similarly, successful missionaries use this incarnational model as they enter a new culture in the Spirit of Jesus, embodying the lifegiving grace and truth of God in our attitudes, activities, motivations and methods. By respecting the Hungarians, language classes for three and servicing in ways they desired, we developed really deep friendships with so many wonderful people, and God did amazing things in and through our lives during those years.

Furthermore, Baptists believe that every Christian is indwelt by the Holy Spirit, the truth as related in the Bible. Thus, as Baptists, we re- gmail.com ject other people (including other Baptists) assuming the

We lived and worked in the role of God in our lives. The Bible is our doctrinal source book, and the Holy Spirit is the interpreter and applier tically, and a bureaucratic of Christian truth in our lives (Jn. 14:26).

So my wife and I had a dilemma on our hands when with willing hearts, and en- our mission group wrote a doctrinal statement, which Except ... our denomination they claimed was the "instruand mission group became ment of doctrinal accountmore and more stifling as its ability" and, under threat of termination, required each micromanagers changed the and every missionary to personally sign it. This we could not do, since the Bible is our only measure of doctrinal accountability. God, not man, had to be our ultimate boss.

So on March 4, 2002, we made the heart-breaking decision to resign our positions. We said goodbye to precious friends and departed Hungary as soon as the school year ended, to begin again in the

All of us must make lifechanging decisions at various points in our lives. Some are more monumental than others, and they are never easy to make. But some hard decisions are absolutely necessary if you are to move on to a new life with new opportunities. When it is time to make such a decision don't be afraid: follow God's leadership and His timing, and march forth! So whatever you are facing that requires a hard decision from you, seek God's leadership, trusting Him to guide your path. For us, March 4 was a good day to decide to march forth! What date will be your "march forth" day?

trick? One possibility is that one or other of the defenders has the doubleton ♣Q. If that doesn't work then you will have to fall back on the Spades, and that's a suit which offers you a choice ... either play the Spades from the top, hoping that the Jack comes down in three rounds or cash the Queen and finesse the Ten. If you look at the Spade suit in isolation, it's a close call as to which line is better (playing for the drop is a slight favorite). But, as the play of the hand develops, watch how the odds change.

East wins that opening Diamond and a Heart is returned. You cash the remaining Hearts, then the A, ♦K, ♦Q, and K. The ♣Q does not fall on the play of the Clubs, so now it Spade suit. Is playing for the drop of the Jack still the slight favorite? Not at all! East showed up with one Diamond and four Hearts, and pitched a Spade and a Club when you played the Diamonds. That means he must have started out with three or four Clubs, so his original distribution must have 5=4=1=3 been 4=4=1=4, there are no other possibilities. What does that tell us? That East started with more Spades that West and is therefore more likely to have the Jack. So the percentage pendulum has swung in favor of taking the Spade finesse. 12 tricks for those who did a little counting.

Town Hall to be Built at North

Thursday, March 9, 1911

from the Mathews Journal

The progressive citizens of North have perfected plans for the building of a town hall at that point. Already lumber is on the ground and the foundation laid. When completed it will be rented out for entertainments, speaking, etc.

Packing Houses for the purpose of putting up herring and roe are nearly completed at New Point and at Fitchetts. The New Point Packing Co., represented by Mr. A. Noblett, is putting up a fine plant and expects to do a large business. These are enterprises of value to the county since they render valuable a class of fish which have been useful heretofore only, generally speaking, for fertilizer.
