Planning and Development Issues, M-NCPPC Study Occupy Council

by Sid Kastner

Issues of development, affecting both Greenbelt East and the original core of the city, again dominated the city council meeting of Monday, February 8. Coming road relocations and interchanges, and interactions with the county planning board, were briefly discussed. The meeting also saw a councilmember berate his fellow council members for rejecting his previous request to postpone a vote on a major development issue until he could be present.

Greenbelt East itself is called "New Greenbelt" in a design study by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) which will be communicated by the Park and Planning staff to the public in a coming presentation.

At the request of the city M-NCPPC carried out a study of existing, approved or proposed developments in Greenbelt East, and suggested "potential unifying features" such as green areas and pathways which could be used as guidance by developers. The study notes, however, that "given the level of development that has already occurred in this area, any planning (now) will have to be supplemental. The council was in agreement that the study should be publicly discussed, and on a motion by councilmember Antoinette Bram decided to hold a public presentation in Greenbelt East where the document will be of most direct interest.

Roads

Impending roadway changes which will directly affect original Greenbelt are the imminent widening of Greenbelt Road at the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and a new interchange at that intersection. The rerouting of a portion of Crescent Road, Ridge Road and Mandan Road is under discussion as a consequence of communications with the county government. The latter topic has been before the City's Advisory Planning Board (APB), and a petition by Ruth Kastner has suggested a public hearing. The staff recommended that a decision on what position the city should take on such rerouting be postponed "until council can review the entire master plan". This was agreed to by council on a formal motion by councilmember Thomas X. White. On the Greenbelt Road - Parkway interchange, White again urged that a public meeting be held to inform citizens since they "were not fully informed regarding the Kenilworth-Greenbelt Road intersection." City Planning and Development coordinator Celia Wilson agreed such a meeting would be "timely" and suggested two involved county officials who could be invited. The public meeting was authorized by council.

Council had recently voted to amend city covenants to allow a third large office building — "Commerce Center III" — to be built on Hanover Parkway, next to the present five-story Commerce Center I office building at Greenbelt Road. Councilmember Joseph Isaacs had been unable to attend the earlier meeting and had asked that a vote on the issue be delayed. He now lectured his colleagues on what he viewed as their "precipitous" action in his absence, in view of their "commitment to open space and reduced development during the recent (election) campaign". He noted that "The city's own Advisory Planning Board objected to the . . . building" and requested that the original motion to approve the building be reconsidered to avoid amending the original covenants. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld responded by suggesting that Isaacs put the request on the agenda as an item to be considered at a future meeting.

North End Center

Betty Timer of the Citizens for North End Center (CNEC) appeared before council to "share our concerns (about) the proposed plans" for the Center. She noted that as presently planned, senior facilities and child day-care facilities will be very close to each other, which could result in generally unfavorable conditions (such as noise) for the seniors. Timer also pointed out that "There's no place in this plan for the artists of Greenbelt" even though the CNEC survey showed that most residents polled want such an artists' center. She urged also that the existing second-story structure on the school not be torn down. She felt that the county-required number of parking spaces (170) was too much.

Council members showed interest in her comments, with White and Isaacs indicating support for revision of the present plans. City manager James K. Giese felt "it would be premature to revise the plans before actually getting funding." Later in the meeting a motion was passed only "to give guidance to the architect."

Greenway Center

Council, and especially Weidenfeld, expressed annoyance at the report that an additional restaurant, to be called the Silver Diner, will be built at Greenway Center next to the Standard Federal bank building. Wilson reported that APB was reviewing this proposal for a 16,000-square-foot establishment facing Greenbelt Road, which would serve beer and wine. Weidenfeld remarked that "there are (now) so many restaurants, you can't park." Bram asked Wilson whether the city could oppose the plans on grounds of there could be an argument against inadequate parking, to which Wilson replied, "On paper they do meet (parking) requirements." Wilson added that the owners say this will be the last development on the property.

Wilson reported that in city discussions with design architects Coffin and Coffin, on the scope of work to be done in con-

Greenbelt Post Office Cuts Wednesday Hours

The Greenbelt Post Office will no longer be open for window service on Wednesday afternoons. As of this week, window service will be available from 8:30 a.m. to noon on that day. Caller and parcel pick-up service will not be affected. Mail delivery will continue as usual, including Express Mail deliveries on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays — Mail collection on Sunday, however will be eliminated.

Reductions in retail window service will be made at 71 Southern Maryland and 8 District of Columbia post offices. This 10 percent reduction results from the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act which mandates nationwide cuts in postal operational spending of $430 million and $815 million in capital outlays during the next 20 months. According to the Southern Maryland/D.C. postal Division General Manager/Postmaster Esther J. Richards these cost-reducing changes were made in ways which are least likely to affect customers, such as eliminating low-usage hours. Only one-third of the operational savings will come from internal cutbacks in travel, training, purchase of supplies and services and other administrative expenses.

Of the operational adjustments taking place locally, two will come from services that directly affect customers. Two-thirds will have visible impact: The elimination of mail collections and outgoing mail processing on Sunday and the reduction in window service hours.

Convenient alternatives to window service introduced or expanded during the past two years include: lobby vending equipment, self-service units, Stamps by Mail, postal contract stations, expanded hours at selected area facilities and the availability of face value stamp booklets at commercial retailers.

Nearby post offices that will be open Wednesday afternoons are the North College Park Branch, 9591 Baltimore Ave. and the Glenn Dale post office, 7003 Glenn Dale Rd. Both of these offices will be closed on Thursday afternoons instead.

APB Reviews Parcel 15, Sunrise Development Plans

by Betsy Likowski

Two newly proposed development projects were reviewed by the city's Advisory Planning Board (APB) on Thursday, February 11, and will be discussed at the next city council meeting on February 22. Plans for developing Parcel 15 near the lake park were approved by APB but plans for three high-rise office buildings on the Sunrise property were rejected.

Parcel 15 is located north of the Beltway and south of the lake park, Charlestowne North and Charlestowne Village. The 10 acres closest to the lake park were deeded by the developer to the city in an agreement reached earlier with the city council.

On the remainder of the parcel there will be a staggered line of townhouse-commercial office buildings situated parallel to the Beltway to serve as a noise buffer. Between these and Charlestowne North will be 100 residential townhouses.

At its meeting on January 20, APB had reviewed the site plan for the development and requested some changes. The addition of a 10 foot strip of landscaping along the Beltway was one of the changes. A berm will have to be built on the edge of the 10 acres deeded to the city to further reduce the noise from the Beltway.

This site plan, showing what the actual development will look like, will go to the county planning board on Feb. 25, one of the last steps before construction can begin.

Sunrise

A plan for three high-rise office buildings plus multi-level garages for the Sunrise property was rejected by APB. This revision showed two stories less per building than an earlier plan. The buildings are now proposed to be nine to 11 stories high and encompass 500,225 square feet of office space.

The Sunrise property is a 10-acre tract located along Hanover Parkway south of the Maryland Trade Center Park. A three-acre parcel lies between it and the Greenway Village Apartments. The land is currently zoned for R-10 high-rise apartments, and would require a zoning change for high-rise office buildings.

After a lengthy discussion, a motion was passed by APB rejecting the concept plan based on concerns over excess traffic, the density of the project, and whether this project would be compatible with the neighborhood.

The developer's attorney, Russell Shipley, admitted it was obvious that traffic was already heavy in the east part of Greenbelt and that any project would add to this. He said a traffic study showed that the office buildings would have the same traffic impact as the high-rise apartment building, the other project the owner is considering for the property.

Ruth Kastner, citing a traffic table from a booklet put out by Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said about five times more traffic would be created by the commercial structures as opposed to an apartment building.

The city's Planning and Development Coordinator Celia Wilson said that the latest traffic study was that done by the Mark Vogel Company for development of Magnolia Farms (next to Doctor's Hospital). That study showed the Hanover Parkway-

Greenbelt Road intersection would get a failing grade without a solution like Vogel's recommendation of a third left-hand-turn lane onto Greenbelt Road. APB members expressed the wish to see a further traffic study done.

An artist's rendering of the three office buildings, as seen from the Beltway, showed that the multi-level garages would be screened from view by the trees. The office buildings would be visible above the trees. APB members liked the fact that the garages would be screened from view at least for part of the year. But, as APB member Bobbi McCarthy said, it is still like a monolith, but less of a monolith, to which APB member Gary Cohn retorted that would make it look like the skyline of Los Angeles rather than New York.

Shipley pointed out that because of the configuration of the buildings most of the trees would be retained if office buildings are built, but most of the trees would be removed if apartment buildings were built.

Prime Cable Raises Installation Charge

The city staff has learned recently that Prime Cable of Maryland has instituted a massive $150 charge for service installation to homes wishing to obtain the lowest-priced service tier, the Universal tier. In addition the Universal Tier will cost $3 per month. By contrast, the installation charge for Prime's next higher level of service, the Cable Plus Tier, is only $15, with a $15.95 monthly charge.

The difference in installation charges is significant and city staff is conducting further investigations into the situation. Persons with questions concerning these new developments should call Renee Bryan at the city offices on 474-8000.

City to Survey Parking

From February 22 through March 5 Greenbelt's city government will be conducting a survey. The purpose of the survey is to determine the parking patterns of patrons of the Roosevelt and Municipal Center areas and to assess what the parking demands are so that the city can plan parking to meet the existing and future needs in these areas.

"Postage Paid" cards will be placed in vehicles parked around the Roosevelt Center and the Municipal building. It is possible that some vehicles may have survey cards placed on them on more than one occasion. Persons who receive cards are asked to take a moment, fill out all cards (whether one or more than one), and mail them to the city. Postage is already paid!

If there are any questions regarding this survey, please contact Celia Wilson or Renee Bryan at the city offices at 474-8000.

Fans Found 'Skins Destined to Win

by Elizabeth Maffay

Early Friday morning on Jan. 29, a bleary-eyed group, clad conspicuously in burgundy and gold, assembled at Dulles Airport to catch a flight to Los Angeles. Was it really worth getting up at 4 a.m.? You bet! We were going to the Super Bowl! In spite of the early hour, and the 'Skins being three-point underdogs, a festive and confident mood settled over our group. Skycaps and others along the way shouted their support: "Go 'Skins!" Later that day we boarded our cruise ship, the Azure Seas, at San Pedro. We were surprised when the Filipino crew, disregarding Bronco fans who were also boarding, gave us the victory signs saying, "We hope your team wins." The ship headed south. The following day we docked at Ensenada, Mexico, for sightseeing and shopping. We were again surprised as merchants and citizens supported the Redskins. Our spirits soared for the Redskins, cheered and supported by everyone. Clearly, we were destined to win.

On Sunday our ship docked in San Diego. This was the big day, the reason we came. Maintaining neutrality, the ship's dining room was ablaze with Redskin and Bronco colors. We were driven by bus to the beautiful Jack Murphy stadium. As fate would have it, we were seated next to a group of Bronco fans. With quiet restraint, we tolerated their non-stop cackling during the first quarter of the game, for we knew that at times our 'Skins have been slow getting into gear. We also knew that our team was going to win. How could they lose?

Well, the rest of the game is a pleasant memory. Jack, my husband, won the Super Bowl trip for outstanding sales performance with his company, Zeroid & Co., a Xerox dealership.

M. Butterfly Playing At National Theater

Currently playing at the National Theatre in Washington is M. Butterfly, a hard-to-classify production that provides an extraordinary view of East-West relations. In the role of a French diplomat is Jon Lithgow, while B. D. Wong plays an enigmatic Chinese. Costumes and the single set are spectacular.

The performance opened in Washington and will go on to Broadway.

Indoor Soccer

by Sue Cornelius

Greenbelt Soccer Association indoor teams are approaching the middle of their winter '88 season. All teams are busy learning the finer points of indoor soccer, which is more like hockey or pinball due to its extremely fast pace. But each team is beginning to play together as a team, as well as improve their own individual skills.

There are eight teams playing in the Bowie White Marsh indoor field. Several coaches volunteered some pertinent information on their teams. Any team not mentioned today will be discussed next week.

Jane Cosner's eight-year-old team played a close game last Sunday. TJ Lubey played his heart out, and Brian Hawe played great as full back. Mike Todd played incredibly as sweeper, then as goalie. Keep it up!

Sue Cornelius' 14-year-old team is getting the idea of using the walls, which is so important to indoor soccer. Philip Larkin, who usually plays a strong fullback, was surprise goalie this week, and did a fantastic job! Mike Cook helped out so much in Philip's spot at fullback. Alex Quintero and Jamie Barcus are destined to turn on their "scoring machine" real soon.

"Doc" Jones' 16-and-under team is GSA's pride and joy as it's been several years since Greenbelt has had a team in this age group. And of course this team is playing against select, experienced indoor teams, but is hanging in there and having a good time. Special mention goes to Jay Hilbert who is their goalie, and also Nick Jones, who, when he was playing goalie, took the ball upfield and scored a Greenbelt goal! Richard Buisch is a real asset to the front line, as is Heather Campbell, who scored a Greenbelt goal.

 nection with planned renovation of the Centerway area, it was agreed that an earlier proposal by the firm did not include sidewalk design and that the proposal should also be expanded to include storm drainage planning. The staff supported a revised hourly fee basis, and asked council to give its approval. Isaacs expressed doubt, saying "We were promised (results) some time back... an hourly basis of payment might be a blank check"; but when Giese argued "I feel it's a fair arrangement, where things are not clearly known," the suggested approval was formally given.

Giese also noted that renovation of the outdoor pool "is doing fine, it will be done by May 1 — our architect is pleased with the work that's been done." Council member Edward Putens complimented him with "Good job, Jim."

Other Items

• At the beginning of the meeting, a petition was received from the Fraternal Order of Police to hold a work session with council on the city's 1988-89 budget.

• Because of differences with the owners of the Smith-Ewing property, the original cost of $375,000 to be assessed to the property owners by the city for constructing Glen Ora Drive will be increased to an immediate cost of $525,000, to be raised in a bond issue. Unfortunately, this cannot be a tax-exempt issue under a new IRS ruling, a situation criticized by White who stressed it would still be a "public improvement" bond issue.

Concerned About Traffic

I would like to mention a few additional points concerning the January 26 city council meeting, in which council voted 3-1 (White opposed, Isaacs absent) to allow construction of a third Commerce Center building off Hanover Parkway.

There were several citizens at that meeting who opposed the proposed office building or voiced concerns about it. Barry Schlesinger and I opposed it mainly because it would generate considerably more traffic than the corporate suite hotel required by the covenants on the property. Dave Lechenheim, of Windsor Green, expressed concerns about the capacity of our roads to accommodate additional development.

At the meeting I offered council morning and afternoon peak-hour traffic figures obtained from traffic generation rates provided by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. These figures showed that the office building would generate about 200 vehicle trips into the property during the morning peak hours, compared to only 50 trips in for the hotel. Similarly the office building would generate about 150 trips out of the property during the afternoon peak hour, compared to only about 50 trips out for the hotel. The figures further showed that the office building could generate as many as 760 more total trips per day than the hotel. Despite these figures, council voted to approve the office building.

Furthermore, the Advisory Planning Board had issued an addendum report on the proposed office building, in which they stated that they did not support it, still felt the hotel was a "viable and desirable use for the site," and pointed out that "traffic impact has not been addressed in objective analysis." Though council formally accepted this report at the meeting, its contents were not even mentioned and apparently did not enter into their decision. (The report was not available to the public at the January 26 meeting.)

I am disturbed that council chose to completely ignore an APB recommendation which conflicted with their own position. I am also disturbed that they took action despite a written request from councilman Isaacs to defer action until he could be present. As council's APB liaison, Mr. Isaacs surely would have brought out the APB report, insuring a more complete discussion.

Council's decision to amend the covenants is not final, however. They will have to vote on the new set of covenants. At that time, I hope that their decision will be based on a more complete factual analysis.

Writing for Relief

Saturday, January 9 I was at my office after gum surgery — in pain but meeting deadlines. At 3 p.m. I was called and told my mother-in-law had just died. After a number of calls I returned to my work. About 8:30 p.m., the combination of pain and grief was too much and I went out to drive home to find that my car had been stolen.

I called 911 to report the theft to the D.C. police. I was told I would have to wait one-and-a-half to two hours at the office for them to call back. My brother-in-law came and took me to his house where I called the D.C. police again. I was told I would have to wait. I gave them my home number. I arrived home about 10:15 p.m.; a D.C. policeman had called.

I returned his call and was told that communications shut down at 10 p.m. Interesting city.

At about 1 a.m., Officer White from the Gaithersburg police came by and asked if I owned my car, was it stolen and had I reported it? The car was recovered in Greenbelt with the thieves. He called Greenbelt to arrange to have me pick it up. Ms. Boehm of Greenbelt communications (they were open) called back to confirm — nice people.

A Greenbelt officer, Michael Jeffreys, told me he had responded to a domestic call and found my car with three young men standing in front of the apartment. He approached them and saw the steering column was destroyed and arrested them for theft — but no report. On my behalf he called D.C. I'm glad he did it, I would have failed.

Another nice Greenbelt officer started my car and showed me how to shut it off. I am mechanically inept and when I got home I couldn't figure out how to stop the car — pull the battery cable? Would I get zapped? No garages were open so I decided to get help from the nearby MD State police. The Duty Officer didn't know how to help but needed my license and registration. He would then check with Greenbelt, and if the car were mine he would try to help. Like a good citizen I gave him everything and then my gorge rose. "What thief in his right mind would come to you for help to stop a car he had just stolen? You must need to meet your arrest quota," sez he. "Arrest????!!!" sez he. I asked for my materials back with thanks and I found myself handcuffed to a stanchion while they checked me out.

Off to Montgomery County police nearby. They were all but deserted and no help.

Back home I flagged down a Washington Post delivery truck whose driver figured out how to stop the car in a few minutes.

There will be three trials for the thieves at three different locations at which I am subpoenaed to appear and testify that I own the car, that it was stolen, and then restitution will be ordered.

Thanks to the Greenbelt and Gaithersburg police departments, and to the devil with the rest. Hope the word doesn't get out in D.C. that the response time for the police department is two hours before 10 p.m. and everybody is free to do what they like until the next morning.

Where Is It?

Thank you for the wonderful job producing the Greenbelt News Review. Your combined talents and dedication show through in a consistently informative and quality publication.

I have been a Greenbelt resident for over nine years. However I am not familiar with the different parcels and tracts of lands that are mentioned in articles.

I would like to offer a suggestion to consider. Please accompany such articles with either a proper diagram or a descriptive passage that can be followed by someone not too familiar with the area.

Again, thank you for the Greenbelt News Review.

Editor's Note: We appreciate the kind words. We do publish maps, and would use more if staff time to draft them and space to print them permitted. Lack of space is often a constraint also on our use of descriptive text.

THANKS

Our enthusiastic praise and gratitude are in order for the Co-op supermarket in recognition of their assistance with our voter registration campaign over the past two weekends. In that effort, the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club succeeded in registering 139 new voters before the registration deadline. Co-op management and staff provided space, furniture, and considerable moral support throughout the project. We salute Co-op personnel in this exemplary exercise of civic involvement in the Greenbelt tradition.

Dependents May Have To File State Tax Returns

An individual, such as a student, who is claimed as a dependent on someone else's federal income tax return, may have to file a federal income tax return themselves for the first time, depending on the kind and amount of their income.

"For Maryland tax purposes, dependent taxpayers are treated simply as either single or married individuals, meaning you don't have to file a state return unless you meet the filing requirements for your category listed in the state tax packet," said Maryland State Comptroller Louis Goldstein.

"If you do have to file a state return, you are not allowed to claim a personal exemption for yourself, because that exemption is being claimed on another tax return. This means you cannot file the short form or use the tax tables, because personal exemptions are built into those calculations," he continued.

Dependent taxpayers, especially students, must file a state return regardless of their amount of gross income if they had tax withheld from their pay and are due a state income tax refund.

All 15 Maryland income tax offices are open Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. - including all state holidays, certain weekends and some evenings between now and the filing deadline, Friday, April 15, 1988. The extra hours are listed in the tax packet.

State tax experts will complete the Maryland return free of charge as long as taxpayers bring a completed copy of their federal return and all W-2 statements.

The addresses and telephone numbers are listed on the back of the tax packet and in most local telephone directories. The toll-free number for state tax assistance is 1-800-MD TAXES.

GHI Board Acts to Implement Towing Authority for Parking Regulations

by Mavis Fletcher

The board of directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. passed a resolution to implement the vehicle towing authority contained in a Prince Georges County code ordinance passed last year by the county council. Under the resolution, GHI agrees to indemnify the county for any expenses or claims against the county resulting from towing vehicles from GHI property.

According to GHI Manager Ron Colton's report to the board, the resolution is required by the county before vehicles can be towed by private property owners. In response to a question by Director Wayne Williams, Assistant Manager Steve Wright said that GHI's insurance would adequately protect the cooperative against such claims.

Colton emphasized that GHI does not intend to tow many cars and that efforts will be made to contact the member owning the car before it is towed. He said, however, that in cases of persistent violations or flagrant abuses (such as parking in fire lanes), cars will be towed. He gave the board a draft letter which will eventually be sent to all members explaining the towing policy.

Presales Education

The board spent much of the evening discussing how prospective members of the co-op can be educated about the realities of co-op living before they sign a contract for a unit. Colton's report said that the staff is receiving "an increasing number of complaints from prospective purchasers who state they were given incomplete or inaccurate information at the time they signed a sales contract to purchase." In some cases, he indicated, the purchasers did not wish to complete the purchase. Colton noted that such members do not "become happy or productive members of the community."

The discussion by board members, staff, and some members present centered around some method (voluntary or mandatory) for getting prospective buyers to attend an orientation session before they put down a deposit or sign a sales contract. Colton noted, "We have a responsibility as a co-op to promote consumer education."

Suggestions for accomplishing this education ranged from a requirement that GHI should ratify all sales contracts, to Director Andrea Haslinger's proposal that board members take turns at being "on call" on weekends to give prospective buyers the orientation course.

Director Mac Wirick asked how much additional staff time would be required to give such orientation. Colton thought in the long run and considering that fewer complaints would have to be dealt with, little additional work would be required.

Director Betty Deitch worried about prospective sellers who might lose a sale if a buyer could tie up a unit and then have to wait, perhaps for days, to take the orientation course.

Williams said he hesitated to go directly to a mandatory action, and preferred a method which would offer orientation. If the buyer then refused, the buyer would have to sign a statement of refusal. Director Nancy Hutchins noted that sales contracts tend to be signed on weekends and that finding a time to give the orientation might be difficult.

In the end, President Margaret Hogensen summed up the various suggestions and asked the manager to get some advice from the corporation counsel before coming back with recommendations.

Parcel 1

Ruth Kastner, chairperson of Save The Green Belt, an activist group trying to prevent development of Parcel 1, attended the board meeting to urge the board to restate its support for acquiring the whole tract, which adjoins many GHI properties, for park land. Members Marsha Barrett, Paul Downs, and David Vincent also attended in support of this goal. In a letter to the board, Kastner expressed fears that the board's discussion during its January 28 meeting might be misconstrued as "in effect giving GHI's consent to development."

During the January 23 meeting, the board had discussed what Hogensen called "contingency plans" if development does go ahead. Hogensen assured Kastner that no action of the board was intended to convey that the entire parcel should not be acquired. Many of the other board members also expressed similar positions.

Williams expressed the hope that the group which Kastner heads will stay in existence. He said he is convinced that much more development will be tried in Greenbelt and that it is important to have such a group in place. Noting that the city council "has to look at the money, and that the (GHI) board has to look at the impact on members," he said that an independent group which can look "at it from the point of view of preferences" is valuable.

Annual Meeting

The board designated the Board Room in the GHI administration building on Hamilton Place as the annual meeting polling place. The voting is usually held in the city council chamber in the municipal building. According to Joan Freeman, Director of Member Services, that location will not be available this year because of a schedule conflict.

Some of the significant dates leading up to the May 18 annual meeting were listed for the board: midnight, Saturday, April 23 is the deadline for placing an item on the agenda by petition; notice of the meeting and the agenda will be mailed (first class) to the membership between April 28 and May 8; biographies of the candidates are due by Monday, May 2.

Other Items

Colton reported to the board on a proposal by Governor Donald Schaefer to repay depositors whose money is still tied up in defunct savings and loan institutions. The proposal, which must be approved by the Maryland legislature, would provide enough state money to ensure that all depositors would be repaid in full by the end of 1989. Colton said, however, that large depositors (of which GHI is one) would get their money later, rather than earlier, under this proposal.

Proposed legislation which would provide immunity from liability for unpaid volunteers who serve on the board of directors of cooperatives had been on the board's agenda for discussion. According to Colton's report, the bill had been introduced at the request of the board of the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative. However, at the board meeting, Colton said that the bill had been withdrawn. Therefore no discussion of the merits of the legislation was held.

The next meeting of the GHI board of directors will be held on February 25.

What Are Wisdom Teeth?

The adult human mouth should contain 32 teeth. The first 28 are completely in place by age 12-14, while the last four don't begin to erupt until 18-25. Although these four teeth are molars, they probably came to be known as "Wisdom teeth" since they don't appear until adulthood, the time when we have achieved "wisdom".

Through the process of evolution the human jaw and forward portion of the skull have gotten smaller, so that in modern man there is not enough room for the wisdom teeth to erupt and function normally. Many times the wisdom teeth become imbedded (impacted) in bone and must be surgically removed while at other times merely removing a remaining piece of gum tissue will permit full eruption. Your family dentist monitors the development of wisdom teeth as part of your periodic examination and can advise on any necessary treatment. However, if any pain or swelling develops in the area of your wisdom teeth contact your dentist immediately.

Greenbelters Aid In History Class

On Wednesday, January 20, Dorothy Lauber, Leta Mach and Renee Bryan traveled to Bethesda to speak to 50 11th grade students at St. Andrew's Episcopal School. In their American History course, taught by Jim Wigren, the students are presently studying the Depression and F. D. Roosevelt's New Deal. Renee acted as coordinator and moderator while Leta discussed "Constructing the Town of Greenbelt", which happens to be the title of her chapter in the Greenbelt 50th Anniversary Book, and Dorothy discussed and read excerpts from the "Looking Back" book of recollections. Overall, discussions were lively, as the students had many questions after seeing "The City, Model-town U.S.A.", and "Greenbelt, Maryland: A Unique American City," the day before. Wigren hopes that plans for a field trip to Greenbelt could be made a part of next year's class schedule.

Friday, January 29 at the LaFontaine Bleu in New Carrollton.

Jerry Nardi, Greenbelt, was one of the photographers whose works were selected for display beginning January 27 in the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum, Pioneers of Flight Gallery. His selection is the result of the Museum's "Focus on Flight" photo contest. The exhibit continues through July 31.
