A Brief History of the Walled Gardens.

Dating from the 1750s, but probably developed from an earlier site, the walled gardens of Mottisfont Abbey supplied fresh fruit, vegetables and cut flowers to the Mansion for over 200 years.

The South Garden. (‘The Old Framery’)

This was the nerve centre of the Victorian Garden. Home to several large greenhouses and a variety of heated and cold frames producing everything from cucumbers to pineapples. From 1972 to 1988 it served as the visitor car park and main entrance point to the property. A major project is now underway to redevelop this area. The new design looks to re-interpret this space and is inspired by its past history as a kitchen garden and of course, Mottisfont's roses.

The Central Garden. (‘The Old Kitchen Garden’)

Developed in the early 1970s by the great rosarian, Graham Thomas, as his “Garden of Old Roses”, this area contains the nucleus of the collection gathered by him over the previous thirty years. A garden of international importance and reputation, it remains the most complete and compelling statement of his planting philosophy and gardening genius. It is seen at its best in June.

The North Garden. (‘The Old Orchard’)

Developed in the mid 1980s from a grassed orchard site, this garden contains roses collected over the past thirty years. Among the many historic varieties grown here will be found the modern shrub ‘Graham Thomas’ named in honour of the gentleman to whose memory these gardens are dedicated. It contains many repeat-blooming varieties as well as our collection of lavenders.

Plant Heritage (NCCPG)

Mottisfont is proud to hold the National Collection of Shrub Roses – pre 1900. The varieties within the collection are indicated thus * on the following alphabetical lists.

Frequently asked questions

Do you deadhead the roses?

We do not deadhead the once-flowering roses (which form the majority of our collection). Many of these roses produce hips which provide both winter colour and a source of food for wildlife. We will remove the spent blooms of the repeat-flowering roses by cutting the stem back to a healthy new bud which will encourage them to keep flowering.

When do you prune the roses?

We do the majority of the rose pruning between December and March. The once-flowering pillar roses we will prune in August after flowering. This will encourage the rose to put its energy into the new growth for the following year's display.

Do you spray your roses against disease?

We have in the past used fungicides to deal with outbreaks of black spot and rust but now prefer not to use any chemicals with the walled gardens as they can reduce the health of the soil. Our philosophy is to maintain a healthy, natural environment for our roses. We are making efforts to improve soil health by spreading layers of our home-made organic composted material over the surface of the soil. During the course of the year worms and organisms break down this compost and thereby feed the soil in a natural way. We make over 100 tonnes of compost a year at Mottisfont. This approach is a long term solution to managing our plant and soil health.

Can you plant a rose in the same spot as a previous rose?

Yes, if you have healthy soil replanting is not a problem. When planting a rose always dig a generous sized hole and fork in some compost to the base of the hole along with some mycorrhizal fungi.

What compost do you use?

We used our own home made compost which we believe to be ideal. We know what has gone into it and are confident it not only provides added nutrients needed by the roses but will also be a good soil conditioner feeding its insects, worms and micro-organisms.

What is the difference between a climbing and rambling rose?

Generally speaking climbing roses repeat flower whilst rambling roses flower just the once in midsummer. Rambling roses flower on the previous year's wood, are more vigorous and so suitable for covering large areas, training over arches or up into trees. Ramblers tend to have smaller flowers often held in clusters.
